The properties of a Forrest are these in speciall, first a Forrest, as it is truly and strictly taken, cannot be in the hands of any but the Kings: the reason is giuen by ¶ M. Frankfe, Feudum francum seu liberum, is by Brooke tit. De meine, n. 32. thus expressed: That which is in the hand of the King or Lord of any Manour, being ancient demesne of the Crowne (viz. the Demesnes) is called Frankfe Fee: and that which is in the hand of the tenants, is ancient demesne only. Vi. Regist. orig. f. 12. a. Whereby it seemeth that that is Frankfe Fee, which a man holdeth at the Common Law to himselfe and his heires, and not by such service as is required in ancient demesne, according to the custome of the Manour. And againe, in the same Booke, fol. 14. b. there is a note to this effect, that the lands which were in the hand of King Edward the Saint, at the making of the Booke called Doomesday, is ancient demesne, and that all the rest in the Realme is Frankfe Fee, with the which note Fitzherbert agreeeth, narr. b. fol. 161. c. so that all the land in the Realme by this reason, is either ancient demesne, or Frankfe Fee. The new expounder of the Law termes defineth Frankfe Fee to be a tenure in Fee simple of lands pleadable at the Common Law, and not in ancient demesne. Vi. q. Fachin:
lib. 7. c. 29. who defineth Feudum Francum esse, pro quo nullum servitium praestatur Domino. With whom agreeeth q. Zaf. de Feud. p. 12. saying, ibid therefore it is Feudum improprium, quia ab omni servitio liberum.

Frankfe ferme, Firma libera, is land or tenement, wherein the nature of Fee is changed by feoffment out of Knights service, for certaine yearly services, and whence neither homage, wardship, marriage, nor releefe may be demanded, nor any other service not contained in the feoffment. q. Brit. c. 66.

Frankfe law, Libera lex. Vi. q. Crompt. iust. pac. f. 156. b. where it is to be found what it is by the contrary. For he that for an offence, as conspiracie, &c. leaseth his Frankfe Law, is said to fall into these mischiefs: First, that he may never be impaneled upon any Iurie or Assise, or otherwise wed in testifying any truth. Next, if he have any thing to doe in the Kings Court, he must not approach thither in person, but must appoint his Attorney. Third-lie, his lands, goods, and chatels must be seised into the Kings hands, and his lands must be distrained, his trees rooted up, and his body committed to prison. For this the said Author citeth the Booke of Assises, f. 59. Conspiracie.
f. 112. 4. Edw. 3. f. 34. Vi. Conspiracie.

Frankfe marriage, Liberum maritadium, is a tenure in taile speciall, growing from these words in the gift comprised: Sciant, &c. me M. H. de W. dedisse & concessisse, & praesenti charta mea confirmasse I. A. filio meo & Marg. uxori eius, filia vera T. N. in liberum maritadium vnum mesuagium, &c. q. West. p. 1. symb. lib. 2. sect. 303. The effect of which words is, that they shall have the land to them, and the heires until the fourth descent, no donatours vel eorum heredes per homagij receptionem a reversione repellantur. And why in the fourth descent and downward, they shall doe service unto the donour, quia in quarto gradu vehementer praesumitur, quod terra non est pro defectu heredum donatorum reversura. lib. 3. c. 11. in pr.

Frankfe pledge, Franciplegium, is compounded of Franc, i. liber, & pleige, i. fideiussor, a free pledge or suretie, and signifieth in our Common Law a pledge or suretie for freemen. For the ancient custome of England for the preservation of the publike peace, was, that every free borne man, at fourteen years of age, after Bracton (religious persons, Clerkes, Knights, and their eldest sonne excepted) should finde suretie for his truth toward the King and his subjects, or else be kept in prison: whereupon a certaine number of neighbours became customably bound one for another, to see each man of their pledge forth coming at all times, or to answer the transgression committed by any broken away. So that whosoever offended, it was forthwith inquired in what pledge he was, and then they of that pledge either brought him forth within 31. daies to his answer, or satisfied for his offence. This was called Frankfe pledge, and the circuit thereof was called Decenna, because it commonly consisted of ten households: and every particular person thus mutually bound for himselfe and his neighbours, was called Decennier, because he was of one Decenna or another. This custome was so kept, that the Shreue at every Countie Court did from time to time take the oathes of young ones, as they grew to the age of 14. yeeres, and see that he were combined in one dozen or another: whereupon this branch of the Shreues authoritie was called visus Franciplegij, view of Frankfe pledge. For the which see the Statute made Anno 18. Ed. 2. See Decennier. Also, view of frankfe pledge, and Free-borgh. That this discipline is borrowed by vs of the Roman Emperours, or rather Lombards, appeareth out of 2. F. 53. & ibi Hotom: cum ibid: adduct: What articles were wont to be inquired of in this Court, read in Hornes

Free chapel, libera capella, by some opinion, is a chapel, founded within a Parish, for the service of God, by the devotion and liberalitie of some good man, our and about the mother Church, unto the which it was free for the Parishioners, to come or not to come, and endowed with maintenance by the founder, and thereupon call d free. Others say, that those only be free Chapels, that are of the Kings foundation, and by him exempted from the Jurisdiction of the Ordinarie, but the King may licence a subiect to found such a Chapell, and by his Charter exempt it from the Ordinaries visitation also: that is it called free in respect it is exempted from the jurisdiction of the Diocesan, appeareth by the Regist. origin: f. 40. 41. These nement in Fee, Fee tayle or for life. In Law, is the right that a man hath to such Land or Tenements, before his entrie or feiture, q. Britton defineth it to this effect. Frank-tenement, is a possession of the soyle, or services issuing out of the soyle, which a Free-man holdeth in fee to him and his heires or at the least for Terme of his life, though the soyle be charged with Free-services or others, cap: 32. Free-hold, is some time taken in opposition to Villenage, q. Bract:

Terra ex scripto: saith, that Land in the Saxons time was called either
* Bokland, that is holden by Booke or Writing, or * Folcland, that is holden without writing. The Former he reporteth, was held with ferre better conditions, and by the better sort of Tenants as Noble and Gentlemen, being such as we now call Free-hould, the later was commonly in the possession of Clownes, being that which we now call at the will of the Lord. We finde in b a friendless-man, was wont to be the Saxon word for him, we call an Out-law. The reason thereof I take to be, because he was upon his exclusion from the Kings peace, and protection, denied all helpe of friends, after certaine daies. Nam foris fecit amicos, q. Bract: lib: 3. tr. 2. cap: 12. n. 1.

190 a freeborogh, alias frithborgh, alias frithborgh, fridebur-gum, commeth of two Saxon words, frise, i. liber ingenuus & borgh, i. fideiussor, or of frid, i. pax & borgh, i. sponsor, a surety for the peace or good behaviour. This is otherwise called after the French Franck-pledge, the one being in vse in the Saxons time, the other since the Conquest. Vide, Franche-pledge. That it is all one thing it appeareth by q. M. Lambert, in his Explic: of Saxon words, verb: Centuria: and againe in the lawes of King Edward, set out by him fol: 132. in these words, praterca est quedam summa & maxima securitas, per quam omnes statu firmissimo sustineatur, viz: vt vnusquisque stabiliat se sub fideiussione securitate, quam Angli vocant freeborghes, soli tamen Eboracenses dicunt eandem (Cienmannatale) quod sonat Latine decem hominum numerum, the tale of ten men. Hæc securitas hoc modo fiebat, quod de omnibus villis totius regni, sub decennali fideiussione debebant esse vnuersti, ita quod si vnus ex decem foris fecerit nouum ad rectum cum haberent, quod si auferret, daretur lege terminus ei 31. dierum, vt quæstus interim & inuictus ad iusticiam Regis adduceretur, & de suo illicio restauraret damnum quod fecerat. Est si adhuc forisfecerit, de corpore suo iustitia fieret. Sed si infra predictum terminum invenire non posset, &c. q. Bract: maketh mention of frithburgum, lib: 3. tr.

2. cap: 10. in these words: Archiepiscopi, Episcopi, Comites, & Barones, & omnes qui habent, Soc & Sak, Tel & Team, & huiusmodi liberta-tes, milites suos & proprios seruientes armigeros, dapiferos & pincernas, camerarios, coquos, pistores, sub suo frithburgo, habere debent. Item & isti suos armigeros & alios sibi seruientes, quod si eis forisfecerint ipsi domini sui habeant eos ad rectum, & si non habuerint soluant pro eis foris fa-cturam. Et sic obseruandum erit de omnibus alijs qui sunt de alicuius manu facti. Out of these words we learne the reason, why great men were not combined in any ordinary dozeins, and that is, because they were a sufficient assurance for themselves and for their menial seruants, no lesse then the ten were one for another in ordinary dozeins. Vi. Frank-pledge, & Skene d. v. 5. ver. frithborgh, q. Fleta writeth this word frithborgh, and vsith it for the Principall man, or at the least for a man of euery dozeine, frithborgh, saith c a fresh disseisin, Frisca disseisina, commeth of the French fraiz, i. recens & disseis, i. possessione eijcere. It seemeth to signifie in our Common Law, that disseisin, that a man may seeke to defeat of himselfe and by his owne power, without the helpe of the King or his judges, q. Brit: ca. 5. And that is such disseisin, as is not above 15. daies old, q. Bract: lib: 4. cap: 5. at large, concluding that it is arbitrary, and so doth Brit: cap: 65. but cap: 43. he seemeth to say, that in one case it is a yeere. Vi. cap: 44.

d a fresh-fine, is that which was leued within a yeare past, Westm: 2.
cap: 45. an. 13. ed. 1.

e a fresh-force, Frisca forcia, is a force done within 40. daies, as it seemeth by Fitz: nat: br. f. 7. c. for if a man be disseised, of any lands or tenement, within any City or borough, or deforced from them after the death of his aucester, to whome he is heire, or after the death of his tenent for life or in taile, he may within forty daies after his title ascerued haue a bill out of the chaun-cery to the Major, &c.

f a fresh-sute, recens insecutio, is such a present and earnest following of an offendour, as neuer ceaseth from the time of the offence committed or espied until he be apprehended. And the effect of this in the puruite of a Felon, is, that the party perliung shall haue his goods restored him againe, whereas otherwise they are the Kings. See Stavm: pl. cor: lib: 3. cap: 10. & 12.
And the same author, lib: 1. cap: 27. saith, that fresh suite may continue for feauen yeares. Vi. Coke reports lib: 3. high-waies case. Fresh suite saith to be either within the view or without, for q. M. Mantwood saith, that vpon fresh suite within the view, trespassers in the Forest may be attached by the Officers perfwewing them, though without the limits and bounds of the Forest, pag: 2. cap: 19. n. 4. fol: 121.

c a friar obseruant, (frater obseruans) is an order of Franciscans; for the better vnderstanding of whom, it is to be noted, that of those foure orders mentioned in the word (aboue) the Franciscans are minores tam Obseruantes quam Conuentuales & Capuchini q. Zechus de Repub: eccl: tract: de regular: cap: 2. These Friars obseruant you finde spoken of anno 15. H. 8. cap: 12. who be called obseruants, because they are not combined together in any Cloyster, Couent, or corporation, as the Couentu-als are: but onely tie themselves to obserue the rites of their order, and more strictly then the Couentuals doe: and vpon a singularity of Zeale, separate themselves from them, living in certaine places, and companies of their owne choosing. And of these you may reade Hospinian, de orig: & progr: Mona-c Gard, custodia, commeth of the French garde, being all of one signification. It significeth in our Common Law, a custodie or care of defence, but hath diuers applications: sometimes to those that attend upon the person of the Prince, called Yeomen of the Guard: sometime to such as haue the education of children vnder age, or of an Idiot: sometime to a Writ touching Wardship: which Writts are of three sorts, one called a right of Guard or Ward, in French droit de gard. ¶ Fitz: nat: br: f. 139. the second is ejectment de gard. q. 1. de d. f. L. the third is rauishment de gard. Idem. f. 140. F. G. Vi. Gardein, & Ward.

d a Gard, welt, or border of a garment, à Gal: gardér, i. conseruare, quia a Gard or Welt conseruat vestem, because it gards and keeps the garment from tearing. Vi. Border.

e Gardin, custos, commeth of the French gardien, and yet the German Warder is more vnto it. It significeth generally him, that hath the charge or custodie of any person or thing, but most notoriouly him, that hath the education or protection of such people as are not of sufficient discretion to guide themselves and their owne affaires, as children and idiots, being indeed as largely extended, as both a tutor & curator among the Tutor & Curators. For whereas tutor is he, that hath the government of a youth, tor quomodo vntill he come to 14. yeeres of age, and curator hee that hath the disposition differunt, and ordering of his substance afterward, vntill he attaine to 21. yeeres, or that hath the charge of a frantick person, during his lunacie, the common Lawyers vse but onely gardien or gardian for both these. And for the better understanding of our common law in this thing, you must know, that as tutor is either testamentarius or al pratore datus ex l. Atilia, or lastly legitimus, so we haue three sorts of gardeines in England, one ordained by the Father in his last will, an other appointed by the Iudge afterward, the third cast upon the minor by the law and custome of the land. Touching the first, a man haniing goods and chattels neuer so many, may appoint a gardian to the bodie or person of his childe, by his last will and testament, vntill he come to the age of fourteene yeeres, and so the disposing and ordering of his substance, vntill what time he thinketh meet, and that is most commonly the age of 21. yeeres. The same may he doe, if he haue lands to neuer so great a valew, so they hold not in capite of the King, nor of any other Lord by Knights seruice. And in the former case, if the father appoint no gardien to his childe, the ordinarie may appoint one to order his moucables and chattels, vntill the age of 14. yeeres, at which time he may chuse his guardian himselfe, accordingly as by the ciuill law he may his curator. For we hold all one rule with the ciuilians in this case: and that is: invito curator non datur. And for his lands, if he hold any by copie of court roll, commonly the Lord of the fee appointeth him a guardian, vntill he come to the age of 14. yeeres, and that is one, next of kind to the minor of that side, that can hope for least profit by his death. If he hold by charter in socage, then the next of kinde on that side, by which the land commeth not, is the guardian, and heereupon called guardian in socage. And that which is said heere of socage, seemeth to bee true likewise in petit sergentie anni: 28. Edw. 1. stat. 1. And the reason of this * ¶ For: * ¶ Fortescue tescue giueth in his booke, intituled: a Commendation of the politike in litera F. law of England, c. 44. viz. because there might bee suffition, if the next kinsman on that side, by which the land descendeth should haue the custodie and education of the childe, that for desire of his land he might bee inuited to worke him some mischief. Lastly, if a man dye seised of lands, holding by Knights seruice, leauing his heire in minoritie, that is vnder 21. yeeres, the Lord of the fee hath by law, the custodie both of the heire and his land, vntill he come to age. vi. statuti: 1. ann: 28. Edw. 1. And the reason of this Fortescue likewise giueth, for that hee to whom by his tenure he oweth Knights seruice, when he can performe it, is likeliest to traine him vp in martiall and ingenious discipline, until he be of ability. But Polidor Virgil in his Chronicle lib. 16. saith, that it was nequum vestigalis genus excogitatum, to helpe Henry the third, being oppressed much with pouertie, by reason, he received the Kingdom much wasted by the wars of his ancestors, and therefore needing extraordinarie helpe to uphold his estate. Yet the 33. chap. of the grand. Custum; maketh mention of this to have been used by the Normans. Here is to be observed, whether land in Knights service held in capite, or of another Lord, or some of the King, and some of another. If of the King, whether of the King alone or not, all is one. For the King in this case is guardian to the heirs both person and land by his prerogative. ¶ Stawm: proreg. c. 1. If he hold of a common Lord, it is either of one alone or more. If of one only, then is he guardian of both person and lands, if of more, then the Lord of whom he holdeth by the elder tenure, is guardian of the person, and every one of the rest hath the custodie of the land holden of himselfe. If the priority of the tenure cannot be discerned, then is he guardian of the person that first happeneth him. ¶ Term. of the law. & Stawm: which f. 19. maketh mention of gardin in feit. and gardin in droit. that is in deed and in law. Take the first to be him that purchased or otherwise obtained the ward of the Lord of whom the land holdeth. The second him, that hath the right by his inheritance and signorie. ¶ Old nat. br. f. 94. Then is there gardein per cause de gard, who is he that hath the wardship of a minor, because he is guardian of his Lord being likewise in minoritie. ¶ Stawm: f. 14. Vi. Skene Verb. sig. verb. a Gaude.

5320 a Gaude, ex gaudere, quoniam prebet gaudium pueris & infanti-bus. Vi. Toy and Crise.

5321 a Gaulelet, is a speciall and ancient kinde of Cessavit used in Kent, where this custome of Gaulekinde continueth: whereby the tenant shall forfeit his lands and tenements to the Lord of whom they are holden, if hee withdraw from his Lord his due rents and seruices, after this manner as followeth.

If any tenant in Gaulekinde, withhold his rent and his seruices of the tene-ments which hee holdeth of his Lord, let the Lord seeke by the award of his court from three weekes to three weekes, to finde some distresse upon the tenements vntill the fourth Court, alwaies with witnesses. And if within that time, he can finde no distresse in that tenement, whereby hee may haue insite of his Tenant, then at the fourth Court let it be awarded, that he shall take that tenement into his hand, in the name of a distresse, as if it were an ox or a cowe, and let him keepe it a yeere and a day in his hand without manuring it: within which terme if the Tenant come and pay his arrears, get, and make reasonable amends for the withholding, then let him haue and enjoy his tenement as his ancestors and he before held it: and if hee doe not come before the yeere and the day be past, then let the Lord goe to the next Countie court with his witnesses of his owne Court, and pronounce there this proesse to haue further witness, and by the awarde of his Court (after the Countie court holden) he shall enter and manure in those lands and tenements as in his owne. And if the Tenant come afterward, and will rehaue his tenements, and hold them as he did before, let him make agreement with the Lord, according as it is anciently said.

Haue he not since any thing giuen, nor haue he not since any thing paid: then let him pay V. li. for his error before hee become tenant or holder a-gaine. See heereof 10. H. 3. Fitz. Cessavit 60. and statute 10. Edw. 2. of Gaulelet in London. In the collection of statutes London 2. matter much tending to this purpose, that by this word Gaulelet, the Lord shall haue the land for the ceasing of the Tenant. And see W. 2. cap. 21. which giueth Cessavit.

There be some copies that haue the first verse thus written:

Nifith yelde, and nifith gelde.

And others thus:

Nighefith yelde, and nighefith geld.

But these differ not in signification.

Other copies haue it after this sort:

Nigondfith feld, and nigondfith geld.

That is to say, Let him nine times pay, and nine times repay.

Gaulekinde. 5322 a Gaulekind, is by M^r. Lamberd in his exposition of Saxon words, verbo, Terra ex scripto, compounded of three Saxon words, gylfe, eal, cyn, giue all kin: omnibus cognatione proximis data. But M^r. Ver-stegan in his restitution of decayed intelligence, cap. 3. calleth it Gaulekind, q. giue all kind, (for kind in low dutch is a childe) that is, giue to each child his part. Nobis autem verisimile etiam habetur galekin a galef sine zafob, quod debium vel tributum sonat (vt Saxonice videas q. Mat. 18. 25. Luc. 7. 41. & 20. 22.) Et kyn (rectius per c, cyn) i. genus seu fami-lia. Ac si diceretur pradium, debium vel tributum generi. Morem hunc apud veteres ipsos Germanos inuasisse Tacitus memorat (in Germi mori) unde & nostratibus per Saxones deuenisse non est dubium.

Teutonibus priscis, patrios succedit in agros

Macula stirps omnis, ne foret vlla potens.

It signifieth in our common Law a custome, whereby the lands of the father is equally diuided at his death amongst all his sonnes, or the land of the brother equally diuided among the brethren, if he haue no issue of his owne, q. Kitch. fol. 102. This custome is said to be of force in diuers places of Eng-land, but especially in Kent, as the said Author reporteth, shewing also the cause why Kentish men rather vse this custome, than any other prouince, viz. because it was a composition made between the Conqueror and them, after all England beside was conquered, that they should enioy their ancient cus-tomes, whereof this was one. For M. Camden in his Britannia, pag. 239. saith in expresse words thus: Cantiani ea lege Gulielmo Normanno se dedi-derunt, vt patrias consuetudines illas retinerent, illamque inprimis quam Gaulekind nominant. Hæ terræ quæ eo nomine censentur, liberis masculis ex æquis portionibus diuiduntur, vel fœminis, si masculi non fuerint: adding more worth the noting, viz. Hanc hæreditatem, cum quantumdecimum annum attigerint, aduent, & sine Domini consensu, cuilibet vel dando, vel vendendo alienare licet. Hac filij, parentibus furti damnatis, in id genus fundis succedunt, &c. This custome in diuers Gentilemens lands, was altered at their petition, by Act of Parliament, ann. 31. H. 8. cap. 3. But it appeareth by 18. H. 6. cap. pri. that in those daies there were not above thirty or forty persons in Kent, that held by any other ten-ure. See the new termes, Gaulelet and Gaulekind.

5323-1 a Gaule or gauling. Vi. Gall.

5323-2 a Gaugedour (Gaugeator) seemeth to come of the French Gau-chir, i. in gyrum torquere. It signifieth with vs an Officer of the Kings appoin-ted to examine all tunnes, hogheads, pipes, barrels, and tercians of wine, oile, honey, butter, and to giue them a marke of allowance, before they be sold in any place. And because this marke is a circle made with an iron instrument for that purpose, it seemeth that from thence he taketh his name, of the French Gauchir, that is, to wrie or turne. Plowd: casu Mines, fo. 316. b. is the very day of Saint Peter ad vincula, which was wont, and is still within the limits of the Romane Church, celebrated upon the very Kalends of August. Why it should bee called the Gule of August, it may well be coniectured, that it cometh of the French Gucule, f. the throat, in Latine Gula. The reason of the coniecture is in * Durands rationali diuinorum, lib. 7. cap. de Festo S. Petri ad vincula: who saith that one * Quirinus a Tribune, hauing a daughter that had a disease in her throat, went to Alexander the 6. then Pope of Rome, and desired of him to borrow or see the chaines that S. Peter was chained with under Nero: which request obtained, his said daughter kissing the said chaine, was cured of her disease, and Quirinus with his familie were baptized. Tunc dictus Alexander Papa (ut inquit Durandus) hoc Festum in Kalendis Augusti celebrandum instituit, & in honorem beati Petri Ecclesiam in urbe fabricauit, ubi vincula ipsa reposuit, & ad vincula nominauit, & Kalendis Augusti dedicauit. In qua Festiuitate, populus illic ipsa vincula hodie osculatur. So that this day being before called only the Kalends of August, was upon this occasion afterward termed indifferently either of the instrument that wrought this miracle, S. Peters day ad vincula, or of that part of the maiden, the throat, whereon the miracle was wrought, the Gule of August.

Gule of August.

wife to be employed by the King in martiall messages or other businesse. The Romans called them plurally Feciales, a faciendo. Vi. supra 5697 a Harold. M. Stow in his Annals deriveth them from Heroes, pag. 12. Their Office with vs is described by * Polydore, lib. 19. He saith: *Habent in super apparitores ministros, quos Heraldos dicunt: quorum praefectus armorum Rex vocatur, King at Armes. Hi belli et pacis nuncij, Ducibus, Comitibusque a Rege factis insignia aptant, ac eorum funera curant. They be the Judges and examiners of Gentlemens armes, they marshall all the solemnities at the coronations of Princes, manage combats, and such like. There is also one and the same use of them with vs and with the French nation. See * Lupanus, cap: Herald.*

* Garter instituted by Hen. 5. His office. * Garter is the principall, instituted and created by Henry the fifth, * Stowes Annals, pag: 584. * whose Office is to attend the Knights of the Garter at their solemnities, and to marshall the solemnities of the funerals of all the greater Nobilitie, as of Princes, Dukes, Marquises, Earles, Vicounts, and Barons. And in * Plowden, casu Reniger & Fogassa, is found, that Edward the fourth granted the Office of the King of Herald to one Garter, cum feudis & proficiis ab antiquo, &c. fol. 12. b. The next is * Clarentius, ordained by Edward the fourth: for he attaining the Dukedome of Clarence by the death of George his brother, whom he put to death for aspiring to the Crowne, made the Herald, which properly belonged to the Duke of Clarence, a King at armes, and called him Clarentius. * His Office is, to marshall and dispose the funerals of all the lesser Nobilitie, as Knights and Esquires, thorough the Realme of the south side of Trent. The third is * Norroy, or North-roy, a Gal: Nort, i. the north, & Roy, i. a King: * whose Office is the same on the North side of Trent, that Clarentius hath on this side, as may well appeare by his name, signifying the Northern King, or King of the North parts. Beside these, there be * six others, properly called Herald according to their originall, as they were created to attend Dukes, &c. in marshall executions: viz: Yorke, Lancaster, Somerset, Richmond, Chester, Windfour. Lastly there be * four others called Marshalls or Pursuivants at armes, reckoned after a sort in the number of Herald, and doe commonly succeed in the place of the Herald, as they die, or be preferred: and those be * Blew Mantle, Rouge croise, Rouge-dragon, and Percullis.

Heire.

* Herus unde.

Arrhabe unde.

* Callianus.

5800 an Heire. B. Heritier, Hoor, Erghenaem, i. hereditatem accipiens. G. Hoir, Heritier. P. Erdeiro. H. Eredéro, Heredéro. I. Herede. * L. Heres, quasi Herus, i. dominus bonorum que ad eum descendunt. Alij per x dipti: ab herendo, ut sit heres, q. herens, quia heret in bonis defuncti. Quid: a censuris. Alij ab aipew, i. capio, inuado, occupo. Optime tamen ab Heb: יורש ioresch, à יראש iarasch, i. heredem esse, hereditatem accipere. T. Erb, ab Heb: ערב arabh, i. oppignorauit. * Hinc ערב gnerabon, i. arrha, arrhabe. Gr. ἀρραβών, i. pignus.

b Heire, though for the word it be borrowed of the Latine, yet it hath not altogether the same signification with us, that it hath with the Ciuilians. For whereas they call him heredem, qui ex testamento succedit in vniuersum ius testatoris: the Common Lawyers call him heire, that succeedeth by right of blood in any mans lands or tenements in fee. For there is nothing passeth with them iure hereditatis, but only fee. Moueables or chatels immouable, are giuen by testament, to whom the Testator listeth, or else are at the disposition of the Ordinarie. * Callianus in consuetud. Burg. pag. 909. hath a distinction of heres, which in some sort well accordeth with our Common Law. For he saith, there is heres sanguinis, and heres hereditatis. And a man may be heres sanguinis, that is, heire apparent to his Father or other Ancestour, by blood, and yet may upon displeasure be defeated of his inheritance, or at the least the greatest part thereof.

c Heire loome, seemeth to be compounded of heire and loome, that is, a frame, namely to weave in. The word by time is drawne to a more generall signification, then at the first it did beare, comprehending all implements of household, as namely tables, presses, cupboords, bedsteads, wainscots, and such like, which by the custome of some Countries, hauing belonged to a house certaine descent, are neuer inuentaried after the decease of the owner, as chatels, but accrew to the heire with the house it selfe.

d a ioint Heire. Vi. in Joine, & Coheire.

Gr. ἑλένιον, quia ab Helena lachrymis natum traditur: ideo in Helena Insula laudatissimum. Alij tradunt Helenam hanc herbam primū seuisse, ut vescentes eo serpentes necarentur. Fauere creditur forme, cutem in facie reliquoq. corpore nutrire incorruptam. Preterea putant usu eius quandam gratiam videremque conciliari. Attribuntq. bilaritatis effectum. Vi. Horse-heale.

Heliotrope.

5803 Heliotrope. G. Heliotropie. I. H. P. Heliotropie. L. Heliotropium, Herba solaris. Gr. ἡλιότροπον, ab ἥλιος, i. sol, & τροπή, i. verto: quod nimirum se circumagat cum sole, q. Dios: ut ortum eius mane spectet, & eius iter ad occasum usq. etiam nubiis die, sequatur, nocte velut sideris desiderio florem contrahat, ut nomen indicat. Vnde B. Sonnen-mend, T. Sonnen-wirbel, à sonne, i. sol, & wirbel, i. vertex. Vi. cetera in Turnesol.

Helle, ab hol, i. cauum, cauerna, spelunca: vel ab ἔλος, i. lacus: vel ab Heb: חל hol, i. infernum: vel ab Heb: חיל chol, i. dolus, cruciatum sensu: in inferno enim dolor & frigus dentium. G. Enfer. I. P. Inferno. H. Inferno. L. Infernum, ex infra, à situ. Orcus, q. τὸν δαῖμόν ἐρκος, i. Deorum iusiurandum, quia per eum iurare solebant. Item Stygea palus, Styx, Gr. Στυγὴ, à στυγέω, i. exhorresco, extimesco, ob horribilem frigiditatem, per cuius aquam iurare Superi finguntur à Poetis. Gr. ἄνε, ex a priuat: & εἶδω, i. video, utpote locus tenebrosus. * Tartarus, Τάρταρος, à τάρταρος, i. turbo, perterreo. * L. 2. Bāthrum, βάθρον, peculiariter locus profundus Athenis in quem dammati deiciebantur. Dicitur etiam omnis locus profundus, & τὸ βάθος, i. ob profunditatem, vel & τὸ βάθος, ab ingressu scilicet aquarum. * Acheron, Ἀχέρων, ab ἀχέρων, i. gaudeo, q. sine gaudio. Fluius inferorum, * Gehenna, Γέεννα, vocabulum Hebraicum, ex גה ghe, i. vallis, & עמם hinom: nam in valle Hinnon olim Israhelites superstitionibus vicinarum gentium adducti, proprios filios Idolo Molech sacrificabant, magno cum Tympanorum strepitu, ne flagrantium puerorum exclamaciones exaudirent parentes. Dicta est eadem עמם tophet, à עמם toph, i. tympanum. Heb: עמם scheol, à עמם schaal, i. petere & insatiabili cupidine exposcere: quia infernus, ut inquit Sapiens, absq. fine animis hominum inhiat, nec tamen unquam expletur. Br. Vffern.

- 5860 * Hidage (Hidagium) is an extraordinary tax, to be paid for every hide of Land. q. Bract lib. 2. cap. 6. writeth thus of it. Sunt etiam quedam communes praestaciones, quæ seruitia non dicuntur nec de consuetudine veniunt, nisi cum necessitas interuenierit, vel cum Rex uenerit: sicut sunt Hidagia, Coragia, & Caruagia: & alia plura de necessitate & ex consensu communi totius Regni intraducta, & quæ ad Dominum feudi non pertinent, &c. Of this reade the new Expounder of Law termes, who saith, That Hidage is to be quit, if the King shall taxe all the Land by Hides, and yet also granteth it to be the taxe it selfe, saying that it was wont to be an usuall kinde of taxing, as well for provision of armour, as payments of money: and that chiefly in King Etheldreds dayes (a King in this Countrey before the Conquest) who in the yeare of Christ 1006 when as the Danes landed at Sandwich in Kent, taxed all his Land by Hydes, thus, That every 310. Hydes of land should finde one shippe furnished, nished, and eury 8. Hydes should finde one lack of maile, and one Salter, for the defence of the Realme. Vi. hide of land.

Hide of land, Hida terre, Saxonice, Hidelandes, is a certaine measure or quantitie of land, by some mens opinion, that may be plowed with one plow in a yeare. ¶ Termes of Law. By other men, it is an hundred acres. By Beda (who calleth it Familiam) it is as much as will maintaine a familie. ¶ Crompton saith, that it consisteth of an hundred acres, and eight Hides containe a Knights fee. This Hide of Land may come of the Dutch word, heyde, signifying a wide field, also Heath and Broome, as it were a field overgrown with Heath and sweete Broome, whereof peradventure * Heydelberg in Germanie might take denomination, as a berg or hill, where much of that sweete Broome or Heath groweth. b Honour, honor, is, beside the generall signification, used specially for the more noble sort of Seigneuries: whereof other inferior Lordships or Manours doe depend by performance of customes and seruices (some or other) to those that are Lords of them. And it is Verisimile, that none are honours originally, but such as are belonging to the King. Howbeit they may afterward be bestowed in fee vpon other nobles. The manner of creating these honors, may in part be gathered out of the statuter. Anno 31. H. 8. cap. 5. where Hampton Court is made an honor: and Anno 33. eiusdem, cap. 37. & 38. c-1 Justice, Iusticiarius significeth him that is deputed by the King, to doe right by way of iudgement. The reason why he is called Justice, and not Iudex, is, because in ancient time the Latine word for him was Iusticia, and not Iusticiarius: appeareth by q. Glan. lib. 2. cap. 6. Roger Houeden, parte posteruorum annalium, fol. 413. a. and diuers other places: which appellations haue from the Normans, as appeareth by the great Customarie cap. 3. Men of this function should heereby consider, that they are (or ought to be) not Iustici in their iudgements, but in abstract, ipsa iusticia. Another reason why they are called Iusticiarij, and not Iudices, is, because they haue their auctoritie by deputation, as Delegates to the King, and not in magistratus: and therefore cannot depute others in their stead, the Office of the Forest only excepted, who hath that libertie especially giuen him by the statute q. Anno 32. H. 8. ca. 35. For the Chancellor, Marshall, Admirall, and such like, are not called Iusticiarij, but Iudices. Of these Iustices you haue diuers sorts in England, as you may perceiue herefollowing. The manner of creating these Iustices, with other appertinences, read in Fortescue cap. 51.

c-2 Justice of the Kings bench, Iusticiarius de Banco Regis, is a Lord by his office, and the chief of the rest: wherefore he is also called Capitalis Iusticiarius Angliæ. His office especially is, to heare and determine all pleas of the Crowne: that is, such as concerne offences committed against the crowne, dignite, and peace of the King: as treasons, felonies, mayhems, and such like, which you may see in q. Bracton lib. 3. tract. 2. per totum: and in q. Sarns: treatise, intituled The pleas of the crowne, from the first chapter to the 51. of the first booke. But either it was from the beginning, or by time it is come to passe, that hee with his assistance heareth all personall actions, and reall also, if they bee incident to any personall action depending before them. Vi. q. Crompton: Iurisdic. fol. 67. &c. Of this Court fact. lib. 3. cap. 7. num. 2. saith thus: Placita verò civilia in rem & personam in Curia Domini Regis terminanda, coram diuersis Iusticiarijs terminantur: & illarum curiarum habet unam propriam, sicut aulamogiam, & Iusticiarios capitales qui proprias causas Regis terminant, & aliorum omnium per querelam vel per privilegium sue libertatem: ut si aliquis qui implacitari non debeat, nisi coram Domino Rege. This Iustice, as it seemeth, hath no patent vnder the broad scale. & so Crompton saith vbi supra. He is made only by Writ, which is a sort one to this effect: Regina Io-hanni Popham Milicis salutem. Scias quod constituimus vos Iusticiarium nostrum capitalem, ad placitamam nobis terminandum, durante beneplacito nostro. Teste &c. 8. the 12. yeare of his Maiesties raigne, Iacobus Rex Edwardo Coke Militi. Vi. Coke. And Bracton in the place now recited, speaking of the common pleas, saith, that sine warranto iurisdictionem non habet: vbi I think is to be understood of a Commission vnder the great scale. This Court was first called the Kings Bench, because the King sates Iudge, in it, in his proper person, and it was moveable with the Court. Vi. q. Anno 9. H. 3. cap. 11. More of the iurisdiction of this Court, vi. Crompton vbi supra. Vide Kings bench. The oath of the Iusticee in the Statute, An. 18. Ed. 3. Stat. 4. Vi. Oath.

d Justice of common pleas, Iusticiarius communium placitorum, is also a Lord by his office, and is called Dominus Iusticiarius communium placitorum: and he with his assistants originally did heare and determine all causes at the common Law, that is, all civil causes betwene common persons, as well personall as reall, for which causes it was called the Court of common pleas in opposition to the pleas of the Crowne or the Kings pleas, which were speciall, and pertaining to him only. Of this and the iurisdiction hereof, vi. Cromptons Iurisdiction, fol. 91. This Court was alwaies settled in a pee, as appeareth by the Statute, q. An. 9. H. 3. cap. 11. The oath of this Iustice and his Associates, see an. 18. Ed. 3. Stat. 4. Vid. Oath. for the Court of common pleas, as I haue heard, is requirable, the learned Lawiers of the Land (seeing they are to heare and to iudge, and determine of the difficultest and deepest points of law in cases and causes, touching mens Inheritances of all or the most part of the Subjects of the Land) unto which, since the happy raigne of our Sovereigne Lord King IAMES by his Maiestie hath bene called and chosen that * admired and learned Lawier Sir Edward Coke, late Lord chiefe Iustice of these common Pleas, and now Lord chiefe Iustice of England, and one of his Maiesties most honourable priue Counsell, and since by his Maiesties appointment seconded * by that most worthy and learned Lawier, Sir Henrie Hobart Knight, and Baronet, late his Maiesties most worthy Attorney generall, and now Lord by his office, of these common Pleas, of whose rare parts and paines for his Prince and Countrie, of whose milde grauitie and singular care, to giue comfort and encouragement to all men well deseruing in a common-wealth, I cannot here sufficiently relate, but I haue often heard by men of great worth, learning and iudgement, him to bee termed one of the worthies, and most worthily beloued and honored of all, or most part of men, as drawing his lineall descent from that highly worthy * Sir James Hobart, of whom * that learned M. Camden in his Britania in English, Pag. 476. in the title of Northfolke thus writeth, Halles-Halle only memorable for his ancient owner, Sir James Hobart Attorney generall, and of the priue Counsell to King Henrie the seuenth (by him dubbed Knight at such time as he created Henrie his sonne Prince of Wales) who by building from the ground the faire Church at Loddon, being his Parish Church, also S. Olaves bridge over Wauency, that diuideth Norfolk from Suffolke: likewise the Causey thereby, and other workes of pietie, deserved well of the Church, his Countrie, and Common-weale, and planted three houses of his owne issue, out of the second thereof this Sir Henrie Hobart his great grand-child, late Attorney Generall to our Sovereigne King IAMES is lineally descended. So that Sir James was Attorney generall and priue Counsellor to K. Henrie, and Sir Henrie Attorney generall to K. IAMES, I haue further heard, that when the charges of the building of the said Church was cast up, and likewise the charge of the building the Bridge, and of the Causey thereby, there was but only three halfe pence betwene the cost of the one and charge of the other: so that these three made three halfe pence difference.

e Justice of the forest (Iusticiarius Forestæ) (sometimes called Iustice in Eyre of the Forest; is also a Lord by his office, and hath the hearing and determining of all offences, within the Kings Forest, committed against Venison or Vert. Of these there be two, whereof the one ha. b. iurisdiction ouer all the Forests, on this side Trent, the other of all beyond. The chiefeest point of their iurisdiction, consisteth upon the articles of the Kings charter, called Charta de Foresta, made An. 9. Manwoods first part of Forest lawes, pag. 121. & 154. & pag. 76. He is sometimes called Iustice in Eyre of the forest. See the reason in Iustice in Eyre. This is the only Iustice that may appoint a Deputie per statutum, anno 32. H. 8. cap. 35. and on this side Trent, or on the South side, in the time of Queene Elizabeth, and till the twelfth yeare of the happy raigne of our Soueraigne Lord K. Hee was the sonne of the Lord William Howard Baron of Effingham, Gouvernour of Calais, High Admirall of England to Queene Marie, and Lord Chamberlaine, and Lord Priue seale to Queene Elizabeth, which William was third sonne of * Thomas Lo: Howard, Baron Segraue, Mowbray and Bruse, Earle of Surrey, Duke of Northf. High Treasurer, and high Marshall of England to King Henrie the eight, and the greatest Capitaine in his time. This Charles in his youth serued the French King Henrie the second in Metz, besieged by the Emperour Charles the fift, Anno Dñi. 1552. And hee likewise went ouer into Spaine with the Earle of Bedford, at which time King Philip the second was conduced into England, to marrie Queene Marie. He was generall of the horse in the Armie sent against the Rebels in the North, 1569. He hath borne with great honour the highest offices in this Kingdom, viz. Lord high Steward, high Constable, and high Marshall of England, as succeeding his ancestors in honors, and adding to his honourab. fathers vertues, this title of Earle of Nottingham, in regard of his seruice (as appeareth in the charter of his creation) right valiantly and faithfully performed against the Spanish Armada, termed la flota y Armada invincible, in the yeare 1588. at which time he was Generall of the Nauie, as also at the winning of Cales in Spaine, where hee was Lord generall of the forces by Sea, and wintly in commission with the Earle of Essex of those by Land. In which two most waightie and most dangerous employments in warre against the Spaniards, he was in both a most fortunate and victorious Generall, so in the first Treatise of Peace betwene England and Spaine, he was thought fit by his Maiestie, to be sent as a most honorable Embassadour thither, in full confirmation, and establisshing thereof: where with great magnificence, with his Honorable followers, to the Spaniards admiration, he performed the same, as in particular you may reade in the true Relation thereof at large set downe, and printed by * that Iudicious Gentleman M. Rob. Trefwell, Surueyor of his Maiesties woods, and Somerset Harold, which was appointed by his Maiestie to attend the Earle in that imploiment. Iustices of Assise (Iusticiarij ad capiendas Assisas) are such as were wont by speciall commission to be sent (as occasion was offered) into this or that Countie to take Assises: the ground of which policy, was the ease of the subiects. For whereas these actions passe alway by Iurie, so many men might not without great hinderance be brought to London, and therefore Iustices for this purpose were by commission particularly authorised, and sent downe to them. When they come to this dignitie, they give a new practise. ¶ An. 8. Iustices of Oyer and Terminer (Iusticiarij ad audiendum & terminandum) were Iustices deputed upon some especiall or extraordinary occasion, to heare and determine some or more causes, ¶ Fitzh: in his Nat. br: saith, that the commission d'oyer and terminer, is directed to certaine persons upon any great assembly, insurrection, hainous demeanure, or trespass committed. And because the occasion of granting this commission should be maturely weighed, it is provided by the Statute, ¶ An. 2. Ed. 3. cap. 2. that no such commission ought to be granted, but that they shall be dispatched before the Iustices of the one Bench or other, or Iustices eriants, except for horrible trespasses, and that by the especiall favour of the King. The forme of this commission see in Fitzh: Nat. br: fol. 110. Vid. Iustices in Eyre.

Iustice in Eyre

Iustices in Eyre, (Iusticiarij itinerantes) are so termed of the French (Eyre, i. iter, a journey) which is an old word, as (a grand erre, i. magnis itineribus) proverbially spoken. The use of these in ancient time, was to send them with Commission into diuers Counties, to heare such causes especially, as were termed the plects of the Crowne: and therefore one may imagine they were so sent abroad for the ease of the subiects, who must else haue come to the Kings Bench, if the cause were too high for the Countie Court. They differed from the Iustices of Oyer and Terminer, because they (as is above said) were sent vncertainely, upon any vprore or other occasion in the Countrey: but these in Eyre (as M. Gwin setteth downe in the Preface to his Reading) were sent but euerie seuen yeare once: with whom, Horne in his Mirrour of Iustices, seemeth to agree, lib. 2. and lib. 3. cap. de Iustices in Eyre, where he also declareth what belonged to their Office. These were instituted Hen: 2. as M. Camden in his Britan: witnesseth. And Roger Houeden, parte poster. annal. fol. 313. b. hath of them these words: Iusticiarij itinerantes constituti per Henricum secundum, i. qui diuisit regnum suum in sex partes, per quarum singulas tres Iusticiarios itinerantes constituit, quorum nomina hec sunt, &c. And my Lord Coke to the Reader in the ninth part of his Reports citeth out of a very ancient and learned Treatise of the Lawes and Vsages of this Kingdome, whereby this Realme was gouerned about 1100. yeares past, entituled by him the mirrour of Iustices, cap. 1. §. 3. thus: Iusticiarij Itinerantes or Iustices in Eyre, Commissioners itinerant, assigned to haue conuenance of Plects. In aide of such Eyres, the Sherifes Turnes and Viewes of Franck-pledges are necessarie. And all those whome the good men of such Enquests did endite of a capitall offence, the Kings were wont to destroy without any answer (which vsages are yet in practise in Almaine:) But by warrant of Pitie and Mercie (because the frailtie of man cannot refraine from sinne, vnlesse God of his especiall grace giue him abstinence) it is accorded, that no Appellee nor Inditee shall be destroyed without answer.

* Lo: Coke.

Iustices of Gaole deliuerie (Iusticiarij ad Gaolas deliberandas) are such as are sent with Commission to heare and determine all causes, appertaining to such, as for any offence are cast into the Gaole, part of whose authoritie is, to punish such as let to mainprise, those prisoners that by law are not bayleable by the Statute de Finibus, ¶ Cap. 3. Fitzh. Nat. br. fol. 251. l. These by likelihood, in ancient time, were sent to Counties upon this seuerall occasion. But afterward Iustices of Assise were likewise authorized to this, ¶ An. 4. Edw. 3. cap. 3. Their oath is all one with other of the Kings Iustices of either Bench. ¶ Old Abridgement of Statutes, titulo Sacramentum Iusticiariorum. Vide Dath.

Iustices of Labourers, were Iustices appointed in those times to redresse the forwardnesse of labouring men, that would either be idle, or haue vnreasonable wages. Vide ¶ An. 21. Ed. 3. cap. 1. an. 25. eiufd: cap. 8. & an. 31. eiufd: cap. 6.

Iustices of Nisi prius, are all one now adaiies with Iustices of Assises: for it is a common Adournement of a cause in the common plects to put it off to such a day, * Nisi prius Iusticiarij venerint ad eas partes, ad capiendas Assisas: and upon this clause of Adournement they are called Iustices of Nisi prius, as well as Iustices of Assises, by reason of the writ or action that they haue to deale in: Their Commission you may see in Crompton Iuridict: fol. 204. Vide Iustices of Assises.

Iustices of triall baston, alias of trayl baston, were a kinde of Iustices appointed by King Ed. 1. upon occasion of great disorder growne in the Realme, during his absence in the Scottish and French warres. They are called in the old Nat. Br. fol. 51. Iustices of triall baston, but by Holinshed and Stow in Edw. 1. of Trailebaston, of trailing or drawing the staffe, as Holinshed saith. Their Office was to make inquisition through the Realme by the verdict of substantiall Iuries upon all Officers, as Maiors, Shirifes, Baylives, Escheators, and others, touching extortion, bribes, and other such grieuances, as intrusions into other mens lands, and Bartrours that used to take money for beating of men, and also of them whome they did beate: by meanes of which inquisitions many were punished by death, many by ranfome, and so the rest flying the Realme, the land was quieted, and the King gained great riches toward the supporting of his warres. Trail-baston, both words being French, it seemeth that the Etymologie groweth from the French (treilles, i. cancelli, barres or lencilles) of what thing soeuer, a grate with crosse barres, or of the singular treille, i. pergula, a house, arbour, a raile or forme, such as Vines runne vpon: and Baston, a staffe or pole; noting thereby, that the Iustices employed in this Commission had authoritie to proceede without any solempne indgement Seate in any place, either compassed in with railes, or made Booth or Tent-wise, set vp with stauces or poles, without more worke, where soeuer they could apprehend the malefactors they sought for. Vide lib. Assisarum, fol. 141. 57.

Iustices of Peace, (Iusticiarij ad pacem) are they that are appointed by the Kings Commission, with others, to attend the Peace in the Countie where they dwell: of whome, some vpon speciall respect are made of the * Quorum, because some businesse of importance may not be dealt in without the presence or assent of them, or one of them: they are called of the Quorum, because the King in their Commissions thus chuseth or chargeth them, Quorum vos A. B. C. D. E. F. vnum esse volumus, for the speciall trust in them reposed. Of these it is but folly to write more, because they haue so many things pertaining to their Office, as cannot in few words be comprehended. And againe, Iustice Fitzherb. sometime sithence, as also M. Lambert and M. Crompton of late haue written bookes of it, to their great commendation, and fruitfull benefit of the whole Realme. See also Sir Tho: Smyth, de Repub: Angl: lib. 2. cap. 19. They were called * Gardians of the Peace, untill the 36. yeare of King Edw. the third, cap. 12. where they be called Iustices. ¶ Lamb: Eirenarcha, lib. 4. cap. 19. pag. 578. Their Oath see also in Lamb: lib. 1. cap. 10.

Iustices of Peace, ac. within Liberties, (Iusticiarij ad pacem infra libertates) be such in Cities and other corporate Townes, as these others be of any Countie: and their authoritie or power is all one within their seuerall precincts, ¶ An. 27. H. 8. cap. 25.

Iustices, is a writ directed to the Shirife, for the dispatch of iustice in some especiall cause, wherewith of his owne authoritie he cannot deale in his Countie Court, lib. 12. cap. 18. whereupon the writ de Excommunicato deliberando is called a Iustices in the old Nat. br. fol. 35. Also the writ de homine replegiando, eodem, fol. 41. Thirdly the writ de secunda superoneracione pasturæ, eodem, fol. 73. Kitchin fol. 74. saith, that by this writ called Iustices, the Shirife may hold plect of a great summe, whereas of his ordinarie authoritie he cannot hold plects but of summes vnder fortie shillings. Crompt. fol. 231. agreeth with him. It is called a Iustices, because it is a commission to the Shirife ad iusticiandum aliquem, to doe a man right, and requiereth no retorne of any certificate of what he hath done. ¶ Bract. lib. 4. tract. 6. cap. 12. nu. 2. maketh mention of a Iustices to the Shirife of London, in a case of Dover. Kings Bench.

e Kings Bench, Bancus Regius, is the Court or indgement seat where the King of Englang was wont to sit in his owne person: and therefore was it moveable with the Court or Kings household, and called Curia domini Regis, or Aula Regia, ¶ as Mr. Gwine reporteth in the Preface to his Readings: and that, in that and the Exchequer, which were the onely Courts of the King, untill H. 3. his dayes, were handled all matters of Iustice, as well ciuill, as criminall, whereas the Court of common plects might not be so by the statute. ¶ An. 9. H. 3. cap. 11. or rather by M. Gwines opinion, was presently upon the graunt of the great Charter seuerally erected. This Court of the Kings bench, was wont in ancient times to be especially exercised in all criminall matters and plects of the Crowne, leaving the handling of priuate contracts to the County-court. ¶ Glanuil. lib. 1. cap. 2. 3. 4. & lib. 10. cap. 18. Poeta among the Grecians was Homer, among the Romans Virgill, because they were of all others the most excellent. This high order (as appeareth by M. Camden and many others) was first instituted by that famous King Edward the Third, upon good successe in a skirmish, wherein the Kings garter (I know not upon what occasion) was vsed for a token. But I know that Polidore Virgill casteth in another suspicion of the original: his grounds by his owne confession grew from the vulgar opinion: yet as it is, thus take it as I haue read it. Edward the Third, King of England, after he had obtained many great victories, King Iohn of France, King Iames of Scotland, being both prisoners in the Tower of London at one time; and King Henry of Castile, the bastard expelled, and Don Pedro restored by the Prince of Wales, and Duke of Aquitanie, called the Blacke Prince; did upon no weightie occasion first erect this order in Anno 1350. viz: * He dauncing with the Queene and other Ladies of the Court, took up a garter that happened to fall from one of them: whereat some of the Lords smiling, the King said unto them, that ere it were long, he would make that Garter to be of high reputation, and shortly after instituted this order of the Blew Garter, which euery one of the order is bound daily to weare on the left legge, being richly decked with gold and pretious stones, with a buckle of gold, and hauing these words written, or wrought upon it: * Honi soit qui maly pense: which is Shame take him that thinketh euill. M. Fearnie in his glorie of generositie agreeth with M. Camden, and expresli setteth downe the victories, whence this Order was occasioned. Whatseuer cause of beginning it had, it need not seeme a base original, seeing as one saith, Nobilitas sub amore iacet, Nobilitas videri loue. The order is inferiour to none in the world, consisting of * 26. martiall and heroicall Nobles, whereof the King of England is the chiefe, and the rest be either Nobles of the Realme, or * Princes of other Countries, friends and confederates with this Realme, the honour being such, as Emperours and Kings of other Nations haue desired and thankfully accepted it. He that will reade more of this, let him repaire to M. Camden, and Polidore, and M. Fern, fol. 120. vbi supra. * The Ceremonies of the chapter proceeding to election, of the inuestures and robes, of his installation, of his vow, with all such other obseruances, see in M. Segars new booke, intituled Honour militarie and ciuill, li. 2. ca. 9. fo. 65. There are depending on this honourable Order * 26. poore Knights, that haue no other sustentance or meanes of liuing but the allowance of this house, which is giuen them in respect of their daily praier to the honour of God, and (according to the course of those times) of S. George. There be also certaine Officers belonging to this order, as namely the * Prelate of the Garter, which Office is inherent to the Bishop of Winchester for the time being, the Chaunceller of the Garter, the Register, who is * alwayes Deane of Windesour. * The principall King at armes, called Garter, quem vide in Harold, whose chiefe function is to manage and marshal their solemnities at their yeerly feasts and installations. Lastly, the Vsher of the Garter, which (as I haue heard) belongeth to an Vsher of the Princes chamber, called Blacke rod. The site of this College, is the Castle of Windesour, with the Chapell of S. George * erected by Ed. 3. and the Chapter-house in the said Castle. * Hospinian in his booke de origine & progressu Monachatus, maketh mention of this honourable Order, terming it by ignorance of our tongue, Ordinem Carteriorum Equitum, and Charteriorum Equitum: which you may reade cap. 387. as also Bernardus Girardus in his historie, lib. 15. c. 185.

Which dignitie is more then an ordinarie Knight, equall with that of King Iames lately erected of Baronets, yet inferiour to a Baron. It was giuen at the first by the Kings of England and France to such gentlemen, that valiantly carried themselves in two royall battells, or to such as had tenne vassalls, and meanes to maintaine a troupe of horses at their owne charge. q M. Skene in his booke de verb: signif: deriued this word from Banner and rent. But M. Cambrden from the high Dutch Banner heeres, i. Lords or masters of Banners. q Sir Thom. Smith de Repub. Angl. lib. 1. c. 18. saith, that a Banneret is a Knight made in the fields with the ceremonies of the cutting of the point of his standard, and making it as it were a Banner: and they being before Batcheler Knights, are now of greater degree, allowed to display their armes in a Banner in the Kings armie as Barons doe. Of creating a Knight Banneret, you may reade more in M. Seagar Norrey his booke. M. Camden saith, he cannot fetch the antiquitie of these Knights from further, then King Edward the Third, when Englishmen, as hee there saith, were renowned for Chivalrie. Worthie the remembrance it is, to set downe heere out of Froissard the very manner and forme whereby Iohn Chandos a brane and noble Warriour in his time, was made a Banneret, what time as Edward Prince of Wales was to fight a field in the behalf of Peter King of Castile, against Henry the bastard and the French. The said Iohn Chandos came unto the Prince, and deliuered into his hands his owne Banner folded and rolled vp, with these words: My Lord, this is my Banner, may it please you to vnsfold and display it, that I may aduance it in the field this day: for I haue by Gods fauour reuenues sufficient thereunto. The Prince then took the Banner into his hands, vnsfolding the same, deliuered the same againe vnto him with these or such like words: Sir Iohn in the name of God, who blesse this daies seruice of yours, beare your felfe manfully, and giue prooffe what a Knight you are. Hauing thus receiued the Banner, to his companies hee cherefully went: My fellow souldiers, said he, behold there is my banner displayed, and yours in case you defend it courageously, &c.

Knights of the Bath.

e Knights of the Bath. G. Cheualiers des banis (Milites balnei, vel de balneo) are the order of Knights made within the lists of the Bath, girded with a sword, in the ceremonies of his creation. q Ferns glorie rie of generositie, pag: 105. These are spoken of, ¶ An. 8. Ed. 4. cap. 2. But I have heard that these Knights were to be called of a Bath, into the which (after they had beene shaued and trimmed by a Barber) they entred, and thence, the night before they were Knighted, being well bathed, were taken againe by two Esquires, commanded to attend them, dried with fine linnen cloaths, and so apparelled in an Hermits gray weed, with a hood, and a linnen coife, and booted with all, and led thorow many solemne Ceremonies: viz. Confessing their sinnes, watching and praying all night in a Church or Chappell, as though they would begin their warfare in employing their seruice for God especially, with many other, to the order of Knight-hood the next day. So that by the same reason, these seemed to be termed knights of the Bath, by which Knights made out of the field in these dayes, are called * Knights of the Carpet, because in receiving their order, they commonle kneele vpon a Carpet.

* Vi. Camd: Britan: in Eng-lish, pag. 172.

f ¶ Knights of the order of S. John of Ierusalem (Milites S. Iohannis Hierosolymitani) * were otherwise called the Knights of the Rhodes, being an order of Knight-hood, that had beginning about the yeare of the Lord, 1120. Honorius then Pope of Rome. ¶ Callanus de gloria mundi, parte 9. Consider: 4. and M. Fern. in his glorie of Generositie, pag: 127. They had their primary foundation and chiefe abode first in Ierusalem, and then in Rhodes, where many of them liued vnder their Principall, called the M. of Rhodes: untill they were expelled thence by the Turke, An: 1523. since which time, their chiefe seat is at Malta, where they haue done great exploits against the Infidels, but especially in the yeare 1595. These, though they had their beginning and especiall abode first at Ierusalem, and next in Rhodes, yet they encreased both in number and reuenues, liuing after the order of the Friers, vnder the rule of S. Augustine, and were dispersed into France, Spaine, Aluern, Campany, England, and Ireland. Of these mention is made in the Stat: ¶ An. 25. H. 8. cap: 2. An: 26. eiusd. cap: 2. And it appeareth that they in England had one generall Prior, that had the government of the whole order within England and Scotland. ¶ Reg. Orig: fol: 20. b. But toward the end of H. 8. his dayes, they in England and Ireland being found to adhere to the Bishop of Rome against the King, were suppressed, and their lands and goods referred by Parliament to the Kings disposition. ¶ An. 21. H. 8. cap: 24. The occasion, and the propagation of this order more especially described, you may reade in the Treatise entituled the Booke of Honor and Armes, lib. 5. cap: 18. written by M. h ¶ Knights of the Temple, otherwise called Templers. Templarij, was an order of Knight-hood, created by Gelasius the Pope, about the yeare of our Lord, 1117. and so called, because they dwelt in a part of the buildings belonging to the Temple. These in the beginning dwelling not farre from the Sepulchre of the Lord, entertained Christian strangers and Pilgrimes charitably, and in their armour led them thorow the Holy-land, to view such things, as there were to be seene, without feare of Infidels aduoyning. This order continuing and encreasing by the space of two hundred yeares, was farre spread in Christendome, and namely here in England. But at the last, the chiefe of them at Ierusalem, being (as some men say) found to fall away to the Sarazens from Christianitie, and to abound in many vices, the whole order was suppressed by Clemens Quintus, which was about King Edward the 1. dayes; and their substance giuen partly to the Knights of the Rhodes, and partly to other Religious. ¶ Cassan: de gloria mundi, part. 9. Confid. 5. and see An: 1. Ed. 1. cap: 42. Others write, that in truth their destruction grew from cleauing to the Emperour, against the Pope of Rome, whatsoeuer was presented. ¶ Ioach: Steph: de Iurisd: lib. 4. cap: 10. num. 18. m ¶ Bachelor Knights, Vi. sub voce, Bachelor, 17722. A Knight cum alijs linguis: but heere thus much as touching those Knights, who simple without any addition be called Knights, howsoeuer they are in order ranged last, yet by institution they be first, and of greatest antiquitie. For as the Romans, a gowned Nation, gaue vnto them that were entring into mans estate, togam virilem, a virile or plaine gowne without welt or guard: euen so the Germans our Ancesters, bestowed vpon their yong men, whom they iudged meete to manage Armes, armour and weapons, which * Cornelius Tacitus will informe you of, in these wordes: The manner was not for any one to take Armes in hand, before the State allowed him sufficient for martiall seruice, and then in the very assembly and Councell either some one of the Princes or the Father of the yong man (which yong man they termed * Knecht) or some of his Kinsfolke did furnish him with a shield and a laueline: This with them standeth in steede of a virile gowne, and this is the first honour done to youth, before this, they seeme to be but part of a private house, but now with in a while members of a Common-weale. And seeing that such militarie yong men, they termed in their language (which is the mother of ours) Knechts, from them I deeme the originall of name and institution also ought to be fetched, as from a Noble and most ancient Nation. This was the first and most simple manner of creating a Knight, this the Lombards, this the Franckes, now French, this our Countymen all descending out of Germanie in old time used * Paulus Diaconus lib. 1. ca. 22. reporteth thus among the Lombards, this is the custome that the Kings sonne dineth not with his father, except he receiue Armes and Knight-hood before, from some King of forraigne Nation, and * Io: Salisburiensis in his Polycraton, writeth thus, A solemne custome was taken vp and vsed, that the very day when one was to bee honored with the girdle of Knighthood, he should solemnly goe to Church, and by laying and offering his sword vpon the Altar, vow himselfe (as it were) by making a solemne profession to the seruice of the Altar, that is to say, promise y. v. uall seruice and obsequious dutie vnto the Lord. * Peter of Blois also writeth thus, Epist. 94. At this day yong Knights and Souldiers receiue their sword from the Altar, that they might professe themselves Sonnes of the Church, and to haue taken the sword for the defence of the Poore, for punishment and reuenge of Malefactours, and deliuerie of their Countie. But in proceesse of time (saith he) it is turned cleane contrarie. For in these daies since they are become adorned with the Knights cincture, presently they arise and rage, &c. And for the ceremonie to be * girt with a sword, it may seeme to haue proceeded from the militarie discipline of the Romans, because as they deemed it unlawful to fight with their enemy before they were bound to their militarie oath, by a drawen sword: euen so our forefathers thought they might not goe to warfare lawfully, before they were by this ceremonie lawfully authorized: according to which wee reade that William Rufus, King of England, was dubbed Knight by Lanfrank the Archbishop. * Afterwards Kings were wont to send their sonnes vnto the neighbour Princes to receiue Knighthood at their handes: thus was our K. Henrie the second sent vnto Dauid K. of Scots, and Malcolme K. of Scots vnto our K. Henrie the second, and our K. Edw. the first, vnto the K. of Castile, to take of them militarie or virile Armes, for these termes and phrases they used in that Age for the Creation of a Knight: Then it was also, that besides the sword and Girdle, * gilt Spurres were added for more ornament: whereupon at this day they are called in latine Equites Aurati, moreover they had the priuiledge to use and wear a signet: which before they were dubbed Knight, in those daies, they could not doe, as may be gathered out of Abendon booke. In Ages ensuing, Knights were made by their wealth and state of lining: For they which had a great Knights fee, that is sixe hundred and foure score Akers of Land, claimed as their right, the ornament and badges of Knighthood; nay rather vnder * H. 3. they were compelled to bee Knights as many as in the reueneues of their Land as they then weert 150. by the yeare, to the end, England, as well as Italie, might be strengthened with Chivalrie, and they that would not, or were not able to maintaine the honour of Knighthood, should fine for it, and pay a peece of money, this was an Edict by the K. in the yeare 1256. Hence it is that in the K. Records, we meet so often with this. For respite of Knight-hood, A. de N. I. H. &c. Also such like presentments from the Iurors and sworne Enquest, at this, A. de D. holdeth an entire and whole fee, is at full age, and not yet Knight, therefore in misericordia, that is, to be fined at the Kings pleasure. Vid. infra in Knights fee. * The manner of dubbing Knights in these our daies, he that receiveth this dignitie kneeleth downe, then the King with his sword drwaen, slightly smiteth him on the shoulder, speaking to him these wordes withall in french, Sois Cheualier au nom de Dieu, that is, be thou a Knight in the name of God, and afterwards he saith moreover, Auancéz Cheualier, that is, Arise Sir Knight; this Knighthood with our Ancestours was esteemed an excellent and glorious degree, as a noble reward to braue minded men, and such as desired, glorie and honour, then kept they carefully faith and troth, and it was sufficient if they undertooke or promised ought vpon the faith of a Knight, as also yet to this day vpon the faith of a souldier, they were then farre from base gaine and lucre, &c. What manner of payment or aide is to be leuiet for Knights fees, when the Prince, the Kings eldest sonne, is to be made Knight, and inuested into this honour, &c. see something thereof in the beginning of this Dictionary, the word Arde, the rest I leaue to others to write of, &c. when they had so farre offended, that being to suffer death for the offence, * they were first despoiled of their Ensignes and of their degree, viz. their militarie Girdle, vngirted; their sword, taken away; their Spurres, cut off with a hatchet; their Gantlets, plucked from them; their Escutcheon of their Armes reuerfed, like as in the degrading of the * Ecclesiasticall order, all the Ecclesiasticall ornaments, Booke, Chalice, and such like are taken away: but these discourses being too tedious for a Dictionary, whereof I haue bene often taxed, yet will I mislike none that vouchsafeth not so much as the reading of them, only this in this place out of Camden will I adde, that in the * Kings Records are read the names of Knights, of Bachelors, and of Valets, of the Earle of Gloucester, and others, whereupon there be who would haue Bachelors called of the french, Bas-Cheualiers, Low Knights, or Knights of the lowest degree, others of Bataillér, to bataille or fight, de quo. b a Lease (Lessa) commeth of the french (laisser, i. linquere, relinquere, omittere, permittere.) It significth in our common Law, a dimise or letting of Lands, or tenements, or right of common, or of a rent or any hereditament unto an other, for terme of yeares or of life, for a rent reserved. And a lease is either written, called a lease by indenture, or made by word of mouth, called a lease paroll. Vi. the new termes of the Law. The partie that letteth this lease, is called the Lessour, and the partie to whom it is let, the Lessee. And a lease hath in it six points: viz. words importing a dimise, a lessee named, a commencement from a day certaine, a terme of yeares, a determination, a reservation of a rent. ¶ Coke vol. 6. Knights case, fol. 55. 2. A lease of land is as good without deede as with deede, But a lease for terme of life, it behooveth to giue liuerie and seizen upon the land, or else nothing shall passe by the graunt, because they be called free holds. Also a lease of common Rent may not be good without a deede, but of a Parsonage it is good without deede. ¶ New Termes of law.

Fastus dies apud Romanos, cōsiste- bat, in fando & pronunciando, hæc tria verba, Do, Dico, Addico: Da- bat actionem: dicebat ius: Addicebat tam res quam homines. The Ro- mans distinguished the dayes in whole Court or Leet dayes: half Court dayes, and no Leete dayes. These dayes were called Fasti, à fando, from speaking, because upon those dayes which were Fasti, the Prætor or chiefe Iustice might lawfully keepe Court, and administer Iustice, which was not done without the speaking of these three words; Do, Dico, Addico, i. - b Leete (Leta) is otherwise called a Law-day. It seemeth to come from the Saxon, Le the, which, as appeareth by the lawes of King Edward, set out by Mr. Lamb. num. 34. was a Court or iurisdiction about the Wa- pentake or Hundred, comprehending three or foure of them, otherwise called Thryhing, and contained the third part of a Prouince or Shire. Smith, de Repub: Ang: lib. 2. cap. 18. saith, that * Leet or Law-day is all one, and saith, Law in the old Saxon tongue, was called Lanor Laſe, and ſo by corruption changing LanT or Laſe into Leete and Law-day, or rather of B. Laet, i. a Countie Iudge, or Juſtice, that medleth with the meaner matters and cauſes in the Countie of Laet, a Husbandman, which comes of Laeten, to leave or to ſuffer, becauſe, as ſaith Gl. Specul. Sax: the old Saxons having overcome this Countie, left it to be tilld by the Countie-men, as tributarie to them, or that as Becanus ſaith, they being freed, or ſet at libertie, were ſuffered to till their grounds, and ſo of Laeten, to ſuffer or permit, commeth Laet, a Countie or Husband-man, and Laetbanck, a Countie Iudgement bench, or ſeat. Theſe iuriſdictions, one and other be now aboliſhed, and ſwallowed up in the Countie Court, except they be held by preſcriptum. ¶ Kitchin, fol. 6. or Charter in the nature of a Franchiſe, as I have ſaid in (Hundred.) The libertie of Hundreds is rare, but many Lords, together with their Courts Baron, have likewiſe Leets adioyned, and thereby to enquire of ſuch tranſgreſſions, as are ſubieſt to the enquire and correction of the Court: whereof you may reade your fill in Kitchin, from the beginning of his Booke, to the ſixt Chapter: and Briton, cap. 28. But this Court, in whoſe Manour ſoever it be kept, is accounted the Kings Court, becauſe the authoritie thereof, is originally belonging to the Crowne, and thence devolved to inferior perſons. ¶ Kitchin, fol. 6. Juſtice Dyer ſaith, that this Leete was firſt devolved from the Sherifes Turn: fol. 64. And it enquireth of all offences vnder high treaſon, committed againſt the Crowne and dignitie of the King: though it cannot puniſh many, but muſt certifie them to the Juſtices of the Aſſiſe, per ſtat. an. 1. Coke, now L. Chiefe Justice of England, and one of his Maiesties most honourable priuie Council, thus answereth, in his tenth Epistle to the Reader, before his 10. part, or last Tome, yet extant of his learned Reports, in these words: Littletons tenures, a booke of sound and exquisite learning, comprehending much of the marrow of the Common Law, written and published by Thomas Littleton, a grave and learned Judge of the Common Pleas, sometimes of the Inner Temple, wherein hee had great furtherance by * Sir Iohn Prisot, Lord Chiefe Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, a famous and expert Lawyer, and other the Sages of the Law, who flourished in those daies. Of Hotoman and his author I may justly say, and will say no more: Volentes esse legis doctores, non intelligentes neque quæ loquuntur, neque de quibus affirmant: And therefore let vs leaue them among the number of those, qui vituperant quæ ignorant.

Hen. 5. cap. 7. Of these reade Stowes Annals, page 425. and others; that write of those times. The name Lollard deriueth à lollio: i. darnele or cockle, quia sicut lolium inficit segetes, sic Lollardi multoties inficiunt fideles simplices, inter quos conuersantur: Cap. finali, de Hereticis, verbo Lollardie. But Tritemius in his Chronicle, deduceth the name from one Gualter Lohard, a German, as the first author of that Sect, living about the yeare of our Redemption, 1315. and Chilian faith, that Lollardus fuit Alexianus Monachus, & Lollardus quoque dicitur Hereticus Valdensis. b Lord (Dominus) It is a word of honour with us, and is used diversely. Sometime being attributed to a man, that is noble by birth or creation, which sort are otherwise called Lords of the Parliament. Also to the sonnes of a Duke, or the eldest sonne of an Earle &c. Sometime to men honourable by office, as Lord chiefe Iustice &c. And sometime to a meane man that hath fee, and so consequently the homage of tenants within his Manor: for by his tenants he is called Lord, and by none other: and in some places, for distinction sake, he is called Landlord. It is used neuertheless by the Writers of the common Law, most usually in this significacion. And so is it diuided into Lord about, and Lord mesne. Lord mesne is he that is owner of a Manor, and by vertue thereof hath tenants holding of him in fee, and by Copie of Courtroll, and yet holdeih himselfe ouer of a superior Lord: who is called Lord about, or Lord Paramount. 7928 * Magna Charta, called in English the great Charter, is a Magna charta. Charter conteyning a number of Lawes, ordayned the ninth year of H. 3. and confirmed by Ed. 1. The reason why it was termed Magna Charta, was either for that it conteyned the summe of all the written lawes in England, or else that there was an other charter, called the Charter of the Forest, established with it, which in quantitie was the lesser of the two. I reade in Hbllinshead, that King Iohn to appease his Barons, yielded to Lawes or Articles of gouernement, much like to this great Charter, but we now haue no auncienter written Law, then this, which was thought to be beneficiall to the subiects, and a Law of so great equitie, in comparison of those, which were formerly in use, that King H. 3. was thought but hardly to yeeld vnto it, and that to haue the fifteenth peny of all the moueable goods, both of the spirituality and temporality throughout his Realme. Gerard: Holinshead, in H. 3. And though this Charter consist not of about 37 Chapters or Lawes: yet is it of such extent, as all, or the most part of the Law we haue, is thought in some sort to depend of it. 7940 Mainour, aliàs Manour, aliàs Meinoure, or Maner, seemeth to come of the French (Manière) the manner, It significth in the common Law when a theefe hath stolen, and is followed with Hue and Cry, and taken with the manner, that is, hauing the thing stolne about him, that is called the Mainour: and so we say when we finde one doing of an vntowardly Act, that we tooke him with the Mainour, or Manner. Vide Backberend. It was presented, that a theefe was deliuered to the Vicount, together with the Mainour: and thirdly, ¶ Stawnf: pl. Coron: If a man be indicted, that he feloniously stole the goods of another, where, in truth, they be his owne goods, and the goods be brought into the Court as the mainour, and it be demanded of him, what he saith to the goods, and he disclaime them, though he be quitted of the felonie, he shall lose the goods. And againe, fol. 149. If the defendant were taken with the manour, and the manour be carried to the Court, they in ancient times would arraigne him vpon the manour, without any appeale or inditement. I finde this word used in the old Nat: bre: fol. 110. in this sort: where a man maketh a thing by mainour, or leuying, or stopping, in such case he shall haue Assise: where it significth handie-labour, and is but an abbreviation of the French Main-ouerie, or rather Manouuerie, i. workmanship with the hands.

7941 Mainpernable, & Mainpernours. Vide Mainprise.

words (Main, i. manus, a hand, and prins, i. captus, taken, as it were taken into their hands. It significth in our common Law the taking or receiving a man into friendly custodie, that otherwise is or might be committed to prison, and so vpon securitie given for his forth coming at a day assigned: And they that doe thus undertake for any, * are called Mainpernours, because they doe receive him into their hands. ¶ Stawnf: pl. Coron: fol. 178. Of this sort is the word * Mainpernable, which significth him that hath committed such an offence, as by Law he may be thus bayled: For in many cases a man is not mainpernable: whereof see Broke, tit. Mainprise, per totum: & Fitz: nat: bre: fol. 249. & seq. M. Manwood in the first part of his Forest Lawes, pag. 167. maketh a great difference betweene Bayle and Mainprise. For he that is mainprised (quoth he) is alwaies said to be at large, and to goe at his owne libertie out of ward, after the day is set to mainprise, vntill the day of his appearance. But otherwise it is, where a man is let to baile to foure or two men, by the Lord Iustice in eyre of the Forest, vntill a certaine day. For there he is alwaies accounted by the Law to be in their ward and custodie for the time. And they may, if they will, keepe him in ward, or in prison all that time, or otherwise at their will. So that he that is so bayled, shall not be said by the Law to be at large, or at his owne libertie. Vide Bayle.

Adminiculari, ab adminiculum, quod proprie est palus seu pedamentum, fulcendis vitibus accommodatum, ideo dictum quod praesto sit, & ὑποχρησθαι, i. ad manus, readie at hand. Gr. ὑποχρησθαι, ab ὑπο, i. sub, & ἰσχυμι, i. sto. Metaphora est à fulcris, seu columnis, quæ ædificium sustinent. ὑποχρησθαι, à ὑπο, i. ante, & ἰσχυμι sto, vt solent y, qui alios à vi defendunt. b Maintenance (Manutentio vel Manutentia) is a French word, Maintenance, i. maintenance, support, countenance, assistance, and in our Law significth an upholding of a cause or person, metaphorically drawne from the succouring of a young child, that learneith to goe by ones hand, of main in French, that is, a hand, and tenir to hold. In our common Law it is used in the euill part, for him that secondeth a cause depending in suite betweene others, either by lending of money, or making friends for either partie, toward his helpe. ¶ An. 32. H. 8. cap. 9. And when a mans act in this kinde is by law accounted maintenance, and when not, Vid. Broke titulo Maintenance, and Kitchin, fol. 202. & seq. and Fitz: Nat: bre: fol. 172. and Crompt: Jurisdic: fol. 28. 8037-1 Marque, seemeth to me a French word, signifying notam vel signum, a marke, or esse to come from the German March, i. limes, the limits or borders, whereof comes our English Marches. It signifieth in the auncient Statutes of our Land, as much as reprisals, as An. 4. H. 5. cap. 7. Marques and Reprisals are used as Synonima: and letters of Marque are found in the same signification in the same chapter. The reason may be, because the griefes whereupon these letters are sought and granted, are commonly giuen about the bounds and limits of euery Countrey: or at the least, the remedies for the same is likest there to be had by some sudden intrude, and happing of such recompence of the iniurie received, as may most conueniently be lighted vpon. b Marques, or Marquis (Marchio) by the opinion of Hottom:

Verbo Marchio, in verbis feudalibus, cometh of the Germane March, i. limes, a border, signifying originally as much as Custos Limitis, or Comes & præfectus Limitis. Of these Lazius thus writeth: de Marchione nihil compertum est, nisi quod Gothicum vocabulum putamus. The next to this is the * Marshall of the Kings house, whose authoritie is, according to Britton and M. Gwin, to heare the ples of the Crowne, and to punish fautes committed within the verge, and to heare and determine suits betweene those of the Kings household, and others within the verge, Crompt: Iurisd: fol. 102. Of him you may reade Fitzh: nat. br. fol. 241. b. & An. 18. Ed. 3. stat. 2. ca. 7. & An. 27. Ed. 3. stat. 2. ca. 6. & An. 2. H. 4. c. 23. & An. 15. H. 6. ca. 1. Fleta saith, that the office of the Marshall of the Kings house belongeth to the Earle of Northfolke in fee, and that hee may appoint (with the Kings consent) a Knight vnder him, to execute the office: which office he also describeth to be especially to execute the iudgements and decrees of the Steward, and to haue the keeping of the prisoners, li. 2. ca. 4. And reade further of his office in the fifth chapter of the said booke, which is to dispose of the lodging in the Kings household vnder the Chamberlaine, and to cleere the Verge of Strumpets, &c. An. 5. H. 3. stat. 5. Then bee there other inferior Officers of this name: as * Marshall of the Iustices in Eyre, J. Ann. 3. Ed. 1. ca. 19. * Marshall of the Kings Bench, J. An. 5. Ed. 3. ca. 8. and this is he which hath the custodie of the prison, called the Kings Bench in Southwarke, J. Fitz. nat. br. fol. 151. I. And these inferior Marshals be either ad placitum, or in fee, J. Kirchin. fol. 143. I finde also in Fleta, li. 2. ca. 15. mention of a * Marshall of the Kings hall, whose office is, when the tables be prepared and clothes laid, to call out both those of the household, and strangers, according to their worth, and decently to place them, to receiue unworthie persons, to know the number of the hall, and to testifie it at the next account, to see dogs kept out, to saue the almes from filching, to see silence kept, and euery man competently serued with meat and drinke; and when the Court remoneth, to appoint euery one of the household his lodging. * There is also a Marshall of the Eschequer, J. An. 5. H. 3. stat. 5. to whom the Court committeth the custodie of the Kings debtors during the terme time, to the end they may be further imprisoned, if they cleere not their debts. Hee also assigneth Shyreuees, Escheatours, Customers, and Collectours, their Auditors before whom they shall account. He hath all inquisitions taken before Escheatours virtute officij, deliuered to him, to be deliuered by him to the Treasurers Remembrancer. The Pursuyants at Armes are also called Marshals at Armes. Vi. Harold.

c Marshallsee, Marescallia, is the Court of the Marshall, or (word for word) the seat of the Marshall, of whom see Cromptons Iurisd. f. 102. It is also used for the prison in Southwarke, the reason whereof may bee, because the Marshall of the Kings house was wont perhaps to sit there in iudgement. See the Statute J. An. 9. R. 2. ca. 5. & An. 2. H. 4. ca. 23.

b Martial Lawe, is the Law that dependeth vpon the voice of the King, or the Kings Lieutenant in warres. For how be it, the King for the indifferent and equall temper of Lawes, to all his subiects, doe not in time of peace make any Lawes, but by the consent of the three estates in Parliament: yet in warres, by reason of great dangers, rising of small occasions, he useth absolute power: in so much as his word goeth for Law: and this is called Martial Law. 8202-1 the Mesne of a net. Vid. Mesh.

8202-2 Mesne (medius) seemeth to come from the French (Mainné, i. minor natus, younger by birth, or a younger brother.) It signifieth in our Common-law, him that is Lord of a Manour, and thereby hath tenants holding of him, yet holding himselfe of a superiour Lord. And therefore it seemeth not absurdly to be drawne from the French (Mainné) because the Lordship is created after the higher, whereof he holdeth. Mesne also signifieth a writ, which lieth where there is Lord, Mesne, and tenant: the tenant holdeth of the mesne by the same services, whereby the mesne holdeth of the Lord, and the tenant of the mesne, is distrained by the superiour Lord, for that his service or rent, which is due to the Mesne, $\text{Fitz. Nat. br. fol. 135. Mesnaltie.}$

Mesnaltie (Medietas) commeth of Mesne, and signifieth nothing but the right of the Mesne: as, the Mesnaltie is extinct, $\text{Q. d. Nat. br. fol. 44.}$ if the mesnaltie descend of the tenant. $\text{Kitchin, fol. 147.}$ For further understanding whereof, take these words out of the Customarie of Norm: Medietate tenentur feuda, quando aliqua persona intervenit inter Dominum & tenentes. Et hoc modo tenent omnes post nati, mediante ante nato.

the Kings coyne is formed, be it gold or siluer, which is at this present, and long hath bene, viz. the Tower of London, though it appeare by divers stories, and other antiquities, that in ancient times the Mint hath bene also at Caleis, q. An. 21. R. 2. cap. 16. & an. 9. H. 5. stat. 5. cap. 5.
The Officers belonging to the Mint, have not bene alwaies alike. At this present they seeme to be these: * The Warden, who is the chiefe of the rest, and is by his office to receiue the siluer of the Goldsmiths, and to pay them for it, and to ouer-see all the rest belonging to this function. His fee is a hundred pounds per annum. * The Master worker, who receiveth the siluer from the Warden, causeth it to be melted, and delivereth it to the moniers, and taketh it from them againe, when it is made. His allowance is not any set fee, but according to the pound weight. * The third is the Controller, who is to see that the money be made the iust assise, to ouersee the Officers, and controll them, if the money be not as it ought to be.
His fee is 100. markes per annum. * Then is the Master of the Assaye, who weigheth the siluer, and seeth whether it bee according to standard: his yearly fee is also 100. markes. * Then is the Auditour to take the accompts, and make them up Auditor-like. * Then is the Surueyor of the melting, who is to see the siluer cast out, and not to be altered after it is delivered to the melter: which is after the Assay master hath made trial of it. * Then is the Clerke of the yrons, who seeth that the yrons be cleane, and fit to worke with. * Then the Grauer, who graueith the stampes for the monies. * Then the Smyter of yrons, who after they be grauen, smireth them upon the money. * Then the Melters, that melt the bullion, before it come to the coyning. Then the * Blanchers, who doe aneale, boyle, and cleane the money. * The Porter, who keepeth the gate of the Mint. * The Prouost of the Mint, who is to provide for all the monyers, and to ouer-see them. * Lastly, the Monyers, who are some to sheere the money, some to forge it, some to beate it abroad, some to round it, some to stampe or coyne it. Their wages is not by the day or yeare, but vncertaine, according to the waight of the money coyned by them. Other Officers that haue bene in former time, are said now to be out Misadventure.

8274 Misadventure, or Misadventure, cometh of the French Misadventure, i. infortunium. In our Common Law it hath an especial signification for the killing of a man, partly by negligence, and partly by chance. As if one thinking no harme, dissolutely throweth a stone, wherewith he killeth another: or shooteth an arrow, &c. For in this case he committeth not felonie, but only leeseeth his goods, and hath pardon of course for his life. J Stawf. pl. cor. li. i. ca. 8. J Brit. ca. 7. distinguisheth betweene Aventure and Misadventure. Aventure hee maketh to bee meere chance, as if a man being upon or neere the water, bee taken by some sudden sickness, and so fall in, and is drowned: or into the fire, and be burned to death. Misadventure, he maketh, where a man cometh to his death by some outward violence, as the fall of a tree, or of a gate, the running of a cart-wheele, the stroke of a horse, or such like. So that Misadventure in Stawfords opinion is construed somewhat more largely then Britton vnderstandeth it. J West. part. 2. symb. tit. Indirement, sect. 48. maketh homicide casual, to be meere casual or mixt. Homicide by meere chance, he defineth sect. 49. to be, when a man is slaine by meere fortune, against the minde of the killer: as if one hewing, the axe flieth off the haft, and killeth a man. And this is all one with Brittons misadventure. Homicide by chance mixed he defineth, sect. 50. to bee, when the killers ignorance or negligence is ioined with the chance: as if a man loppe trees by an high way side, by which many usually trauell, and cast downe a bough, not giuing warning, &c. by which bough a man passing by is slaine.

8283-1 Mise, Misa, is a French word, signifying as much as Ex-pensum, in Latine, and the Latine word, Misa, is so used in Kitchin, fol: 144. and in West, parte 2. Symbol: tit: Proceedings in Chauncerie, sect. 21. F. It is used, An. 2. & 3. Ed. 6. cap. 36. for a summe of money paid by the Kings tenants, in certaine Counties in Wales, according to their severall customs. In the Stat. 33. H. 8. cap. 13. it is used plurally, for certaine customarie gratuities sent to the Lord Marchers of Wales, by their tenants, at their first comming to their Lands. And An. 4. & 5. Phis & Mar: cap. 11. Mise is used in an action of right or propertie, for the point whereupon the parties proceed to trial, either by Assise or bataille: as issue is in an action personal: if the Mise be vpon battell, J Littleton, fol. 102. and in the Old Nat: Br. fol. 2. you haue these words: Know yee, that this writ hath but two issues: that is to say, ioyning the Mise vpon the Meere, and that is to put himselfe into the great Assise of our Soueraigne Lord the King, or to ioyne bataille. See An. 37. Ed. 3. cap. 16. To ioyne the Mise vpon the Meere, is as much to say, as to ioyne the Mise vpon the cleare right, and that in more plaine termes is nothing else, but to ioyne vpon this point, whether hath the more right, the Tenant, or Demandant, J Littleton, lib. 3. cap. 8. fol. 101. b. This word in some other place is used for a participle, signifying as much as (cast, or put vpon) in English, which appeareth by my Lo. Cokes Report in Saffins Case, vol. 6. fol. 124. a.

But if my grandfather die seised, and a stranger abateth or entreteth the land, then shall I have a writ of Aiel, i. a grandfather. But if my father, mother, brother, sister, vncler, auncle, die seifed, and a stranger abateth or entreteth the land, then shall I have an Assise of Mort-dancester.

8392 Mortgage. G. Mort-gage, Mort-gaige, (Mortuum vadium vel Morgagium) is compounded of two French words (Mort, i. mors, & Gage, i. pignus, merces.) It signifieth in our common Law a pawne of Land or Tenement, or any thing moueable, laid or bound for money borrowed, peremptorily to be the creditors for euer, if the money be not paid at the day agreed upon. And the creditor holding Land or Tenement upon this bargain, is in the meane time called tenant in mortgage. It seemeth that the cause why it is called Mort-gage, is for that it standeth in doubt, whether the feoffee or the borrower (as you may call him) will pay the money at the day appointed, or not. And if he faile to pay, then the Land which he laid in gage, vpon condition of payment of the money, is gone from him for euer, and so dead to him vpon condition. But if he pay the money, then is the gage dead to the feoffee or tenant, and for this cause called Mortuum vadium, Mortgage. G. New Termes of Law.

8393 to Mortifie. G. Mortifier. I. Mortificare. H. Mortiguar, mortificar. P. Mortificar. L. Mortificare. Græc. θανάτω, à θάνατος, i. mors, νεκρῶς, unde νεκρῶς, i. mortificatio. T. Tōdien. B. Dood-den, à θύειν, i. mactare.

8394 a Mortise, or Mortaise. G. Mortaise, quasi mord ais, mordet enim quodammodo, tenetq. mordicus immisum asserem, because a mortaise doth hold as it were by biting into another peece. Vnde & Gall: etiam vocantur adents. Pource que les bois enchassés est comme mordant, & endentant dans la mortoise. Lignum enim adactum, aliq. immisum veluti mordicus illud tenet, & dentibus apprehendit. G. Nicod: Sic Gr. dicunt γομφῶς coagmento, compingo, & γομφῶς, seu γομφῶς, i. contrabulatio, compages, coagmentatio, γομφῶς autem sunt dentes molares. L. Columbaria, facta enim sunt quadrata plerumq. ut foramina illa per que columbe exeunt & columbario, ita autem vocantur ab Architectis cubilia asserum, vel tignorum, ubi sedent asseres. Gumpus à Græc: γομφῶς, i. clauus, Incastratura. In naui sunt, per que videntur remi eminentes κορυβαῖ, i. natura Columbi. Græc. κορυβαῖ, i. foramina, ab κορυβαῖ video, q. foramina per que videre possumus.

8395 Mortling. Vide Mortling.

8396 Mortmain. G. Mortmain, Mainmort, Amortissement. L. Manus mortua, siue emortua, aut immortalis, vulgo dicitur de ijs qui nunquam habere heredem desinunt, ut collegia, cenobia, ciuitates, &c. que quasi immortalia sunt. B. Doodhande, i. mortua manus, videtur autem Dood-hand proprie dici de monachis, cum monachi iure pro mortuis habeantur. G. Kilian: Vide infra.

8397 Mortmaine. Manus mortua. Vi. supra. It signifieth in the Common Law, an alienation of lands or tenements to any corporation, guild, or fraternitie, and their successors, as Bishops, Parsons, Vicars, &c. which may not be done without licence of the King, and the Lord of the Manour. The reason of the name proceedeth from this, as I conceaue it, because the seruices and other profits due for such lands, as echeates, &c. come into a dead hand, or into such a hand as holdeth them, and is not of power to deliuer them, or any thing for them, backe againe. G. Magna charta, ca. 36. & An. 7. Ed. 1. commonly called the Statute of Mortmaine, and Ann. 18. Ed. 3. stat. 3. ca. 3. & Ann. 15. R. 2. ca. 5. Polydore Virgil in the 17. booke of his Chronicles, maketh mention of this Law, and giueth this reason of the name. Et legem hanc Manum mortuam vocant, quod res semel date collegijs Sacerdotum, non vtiue vrsus venderentur, velut mortua, hoc est, vti aliorum mortalium in perpetuum ademptæ essent. Lex diligenter seruatur, sic ut nihil possessionum ordini sacerdotali à quouam detur, nisi Regio permisso. But the former statutes be something abridged by Ann. 39. Eliz. ca. 5. by which the gift of lands, &c. to Hospitals, is permitted without obtaining of Mortmaine. G. Hotom. in his comment. de verbis feudali-bus, verbo Manus mortua, hath these words: * Manus mortua, libutio est que usurpatur de ijs, quorum possessio, ut ita dicam, immortalis est, quia nunquam heredem habere desinunt. Qua de causa res nunquam ad priorem dominum reuertitur. Nam * manus pro possessione dicitur, mortua pro immortalis. Sic municipium dicitur non mori. Amortizatio est in manum mortuam translatio Principis iussu. Petrus Belluga in speculo Principum, fol. 75. Ius amortizationis est licentia capiendi ad manum mortuam. Idem eodem. where you may reade a learned tractate both of the beginning and nature of this doctrine. To the same effect you may reade G. Cassan. de consuet. Burg. pag. 348. 387. 1183. 1185. 1201. 1225. 1285. 1218. 1274. M. Skene de verb. signif. saith that dimittere terras ad manum mortuam, est idem atque dimittere ad multitudinem siue vniuersitatem, quæ nunquam moritur: because communalities neuer die.

8398 a Mortuarie, buriall, or funerall. Also that which is due or giuen to a Parion out of a dead mans goods. G. Mortuair, Mortuair. I. Mortuo, Mortorio. H. P. Mortuorio. L. Mortuaria, orum, à mortuus, of the dead. Gr. νεκρία, à νεκρός, i. mortuus. V. infra Mortuarie.

8399 Mortuarie, Mortuarius, is a gift left by a man at his death to his parish Church, for the recompense of his personall sines and offerings not duly paid in his life time. And if a man haue three or more cat-tell of any kinde, the best being kept for the Lord of the fee, as a Heriot, the second was wont to be giuen to the Parson in right of the Church, cap. stat. de consuet. in provincial. Touching this you haue two statutes: one An. 13. Ed. 1. commonly called Circumspice agatis: whereby it appeareth, that Mortuaries are siuable in the Court Christian: the other An. 21. H. 8. cap. 6. whereby is set downe an order and rate in money for Mortuaries.

8439-1 Mulier, is a word used in the Common Law, but how aptly as the Author of the new termes of Law saith, he could not tell. For according to the proper signification, Mulier is a defiled woman, as Vlpian saith, or rather a woman that hath had the company of a man, &c. but in our Common Law it is otherwise taken for one that is lawfully begotten and borne, and is alwaies used in comparision with a bastard, only to shew a difference betweene them. As for example: A man hath a sonne of a woman before marriage, and that is called a bastard, and vnlawfull: and after he marieth the mother of the bastard, and they haue another sonne, this second sonne is called Mulier, that is to say, lawfull, and he shall be heire vnto his father: but that other cannot be heire to any man, because it is not knowne nor certaine in the iudgement of the Law, who was his father, and for that cause is said to be no mans sonne, or * the sonne of the people, and so without father according to these old verses:

To whom the people father is, to him is father none at all:

To whom the people father is, well fatherlesse we may him call.

And alwaies you shall finde this addition to them, Bastard eldest, and Mulier yongest, when they be compared together. Why hee should bee called Mulier, it may be that the Latine word Mulier, which is generall for a woman, &c. ut supra, hath bene restrained and applied as the Spanisb Muger, the Italian Moglie, comming of the Latine Mulier, and the French Femme comming of the Latine Femina, which three words in those three tongues are only used for a wife, as in Spanisb Mi Muger, in Italian Mia Moglie, in French Ma femme, i. in Latine Mea vxor, my wife, and not mea mulier, mea femina, my woman: so this word in the Common Law Mulier or lawfull begotten, by Synecdoche, signifies, this is the wife or my wiues, when as the other, viz: the bastard, was the femina, or my womans or my wenchs childe, i. a bastard borne out of wedlocke or lawfull marriage.

c Murder (Murdum) is borrowed of the French, Meurtre, i. intencio, homicidium, i. homicide, killing of a man, or murder. The new Expositour of the Law-terms draweth it from the Saxon word, Mof-

Ofen, significyng the same thing. It significeth in our Common-law, a wilfull and felonious killing of any other upon preposed malice. q. An: 52. H. 3. cap. 25. West: part. 2. symb. tit. Inditements, sect. 47. * Bract. lib. 3. Tract. 2. cap. 15. num: 1. defineth it to be Homicidium, quod, nullo presente, nullo sciente, nullo audiente, nullo vidente, clam perpetratur. And of the same kinde is Brit: cap. 6. as also Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 30. Yet * Fleta saith also, that it was not murder, except it were proued that the partie slaine were English, and no stranger. But as * Stawns: saith, Pl: Cor: lib. 1. cap. 2. the law in this point is altered, by the Stat: An: 14. Ed. 3. cap. 4. and murder is now otherwise to be defined. When a man upon preposed malice killeth another, whether secretly or openly, it maketh no matter: or be he an English man, or a forreiner, liuing vnder the Kings protection. And preposed malice is heere either expresse, or implied: expresse, when it may be evidently proued, that there was formerly some euill implied: when one killeth another suddenly, hauing to defend himselfe: as going ouer a stile, or such like, q. Crompt: Justice of Peace, in the Chapter of murder, fol. 19. b. 8606 Nief, or Nief, (Natiua) cometh of the french (Nais, i. natiua, vel natus.) It signifieth in our common Law, a bond woman, q. Anno 1. Ed. 6. cap. 3. Thereason is, because women become bond rather natiuitate, than by any other meanes: whereby Nief is a woman, that is, a bond-woman, or a villeine; but if shee marrie a freeman, shee is thereby made free, because that shee and her husband are but one person in law, and shee ought to be of the same nature and condition in law to all intents that her husband is, and then shee cannot be afterward a Nief without speciall Act done by her, as Divorce, or Confession in Court of Record, &c. likewise, in fauour of libertie, a free-woman, taking a villaine or bondman to her husband, shall not become also a bond-woman, but by the common law, their Issue shall be villeines and bond-men, as their father was, which is contrary in the ciuill law, for there it is said: Partus sequitur ventrem, the birth followeth the belly, and in the common law thus, Partus sequitur Patrem, the birth followeth the father, * Bondage, Villenage, or seruitude, had beginning among the Hebrewes, proceeding from Ham dia: Chan, the father of Chanan, and the Chananites, who seeing the nakednesse of his father Noe, being drunk shewed it to his bretheren in derision, * who was therefore punished in his soane Caanan, with penaltie of bondage, as you may reade Gen. 9. vers. 20. to the end of the Chapter.

c Nomination (Nomination) is used by the Common-Lawyers, as also by the Canonists, for a power, that a man by vertue of a Manour, or otherwise hath, to appoint a Clerke to a Patron of a Benefice, by him to be presented to the Ordinarie. Vid. New termes of the Law.

8636 * Non-abilite, is an exception taken against the Plaintiffe, or Demandant upon some cause, why he cannot commence any suite in Law, and the Defendant saith, that the Plaintiffe is not able to sue an action, and demandeth iudgement if he shall be answered, viz: a Præmunire, Out-lawrie, Villenage, Excommunication: or because he is a stranger borne. The Ciuilians say, that such a man hath not Personam standi in iudicio. See Broke, hoc titulo. See Fitzh: Nat: br: fol. 35. A. fol. 95. D. fol. 77. C. The new Expofitor of Law-termes, reckoneth six causes of Non-abilite: as if he be 1. an Out-law: 2. a Stranger borne: 3. Condemned in a Præmunire: 4. Professed in religion: 5. Excommunicate: 6. or a Villaine. Howbeit the second cause holdeth only in actions reall or mixt, and not in personall, except he be a stranger, and an enemy.

8639 * Non-age, is all the time of a mans age vnder one and twentie yeares in some cases, or fourteene in some, as Marriage. See Broke, tit: Age. Vid. Nonage about figured 8638.

8640 * Non clayme, J. Crompt: Iurisd: fol. 144. seemeth to be an exception against a man, that claimeth not within the time limited by law, as within the yeare and day, in case where a man ought to make continuall clayme, or within five yeares after a fine leuied. Vid. Coke, lib. 4. in procuratio. See Continuall clayme, in voce Continuall.

8641 * Non compos mentis, not in his right wits, is of foure sorts: first, he that is an idiot borne: next, he that by accident afterward wholly leeseeth his wits: thirdly, a lunaticke, that hath sometime his understanding, and sometime not: Lastly, he which by his owne act depriueth himselfe of his right minde for a time, as a drunkard. Vide Coke, lib. 4. fol. 124. b. Vid. Idiot, Idiota, Lunaticke, Drunkard.

8642 * Non distringendo, is a Writ comprising vnder it diuers particulars, according to diuers cases: all which you may see in the table of the Regist: Orig: verbo, Non distringendo.

8643 * Non est culpabilis, is the generall answer to an action of trespasse, whereby the defendant doth absolutely deny the fact imputed vnto him by the Plaintiffe, whereas in other especiall answers, the defendant graunteth the fact to be done, and alledgeth some reason in his defence, why he lawfully might doe it. And therefore, whereas the Rhetoricians comprise all the substance of their discourses vnder three questions

* An sit, quid sit, quale sit: this answer falleth vnder the first of the three: all other answers are vnder one of the other two. And as this is the generall answer in an action of trespasse, that is, an action criminall ciuilly prosecuted; so is it also in all actions criminally followed, either at the suite of the King, or other, wherein the Defendant denieth the crime objected vnto him. See the newbooke of Entries, tit. Non culpabilis, and Stawns: Pl: cor: lib. 2. cap. 62.

8644 * Non est factum, is an answer to a declaration, whereby a man denieth that to bee his deed, whereupon hee is impleaded, J. Broke, hoc titulo.

8645 * Non implacitando aliquem de libero tenemento sine breui, is a Writ to inhibite Bayliffes, &c. from distraining any man without the Kings Writ, touching his free-hold. Regist: fol. 171. b.

8646 * Non intramittendo quando breue præcipe in capite subdole impetratur, is a writ directed to Iustices of the Bench, or in Eyre, willing them not to give one bearing, that hath vnder the colour of intitling the King to land, &c. as holding of him in Capite, deceitfully obtained the writ called Præcipe in capite: but to put him to his Writ of right, if hee thinke good to use it. Regist: Orig: fol. 4. b.

8647 * Non mercandizando victualia, is a Writ directed to the Iustices of Assise, commanding them to inquire, whether the Officers of such a Towne doe sell victuals in grosse or by retails, during their office, contrary to the Statute, and to punish them, if they finde it true, q̄ Regist: fol. 184.

8648 * Non molestando, is a Writ that lyeth for him, which is molested, contrary to the Kings protection graunted him. q̄ Regist: fol. 24.

8649 * Non omittas, is a Writ lying where the Sherife deliuereth a former Writ to a Bayliffe of a franchise, within the which the party, on whom it is to be serued, dwelleth, and the Bayliffe neglecteth to serue it: for in this case, the Sherife returning, that he deliuered it to the Bayliffe, this shall be directed to the Sherife, charging him himselfe to execute the Kings commandement, q̄ Old: nat: br: fol. 44. Of this the Reg: Orig: hath three sortes, fol. 82. b. & 151. & Reg: Iudic: fol. 5. & 56.

8650 * Non ponendo in iussis & iuratis, is a Writ founded upon Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 38. & the Stat. Articuli super chartas, cap. 9. which is graunted vpon diuers causes to men, for the freeing them from Assises and Iuries. See Fitzh. nat. br. fol. 165. See the Regist: fol. 179. 100. 181. 183.

8651 * Non procedendo ad iussam, Rege inconsulto, is a Writ to stop the trial of a cause appertaining to one that is in the Kings seruice, &c. until the Kings pleasure be further knowne, q̄ Regist: fol. 220. 2.

8652 * Non residentia pro clericis Regis, is a Writ directed to the Ordinarie, charging him not to molest a Clerke, employed in the Kings seruice, by reason of his Non residence, q̄ Regist: Orig: fol. 58. b.

8653 * Non sane memorie (Non sana memorie, not of sound memorie) is an exception taken to any act declared by the plaintiffe or demandant to be done by an other, whereupon hee groundeth his plaint or demand. And the contents of this exception be, that the partie that did that act (being himselfe or any other) was not well in his wits, or maddé, when he did it. See the newbooke of Entries, tit. Non sane memorie, and Dum non fuit compos mentis. See also supra Non compos mentis.

8654 * Non soluendo pecuniam ad quam Clericus multatur pro non residentia, is a Writ prohibiting an Ordinarie to take a pecuniarie mulct, imposed upon a Clerke of the Kings, for non-residence, q̄ Regist: Orig: fol. 59.

8655 * Non-suite, is a renunciation of the suite by the plaintiffe or demandant, when the matter is so farre proceeded in, as the Iurie is ready at the Barre, to deliuer their verdict, q̄ An. 2. H. 4. cap. 7. See the newbooke of Entries, verbo Non-suite. The Ciuilians terme it Litis renunciationem.

8656 * Non sum informatus. Vid. Informatus non sum.

8657 * Non terme (non terminus) is the time of vacation between Terme and Terme. It was wont to be called the times or dayes of the Kings peace, q̄ Lamb: Archaiolo. fol. 126. and what these were in the time of King Ed: the Confessor, see there. This time was called * Iustitium or Feria among the Romans, or Dies nefasti, per quos dies nefas fieri prætorem, q̄ Varro. e ¶ Oth of the King (Iuramentum Regis) is that which the King taketh at his Coronation, which in Bract, is set downe in these wordes, Debet Rex in coronatione sua, in nomine IESU CHRISTI præstito Sacramento, hæc tria promittere populo sibi subdito: In primis se esse præceptum, & pro viribus opem impensurum, ut Ecclesiæ Dei & omni populo Christiano vera pax omni suo tempore obsequetur. Secundo, ut in omnibus iudicijs equitatem præcipiat & misericordiam, ut indulgeat, & suam misericordiam clemens & misericors Deus adhibeat, & ut per iustitiam suam firma gaudeant pace universi. And in the old abridgement of Statutes set out in H. 8. dayes, it is thus described. This is the oath that the King shall swear at his Coronation: That he shall keep and maintaine the right, and the liberties of the holy Church, of old time graunted by the righteous Christian Kings of England, and that hee shall keepe all the Lands, Honours, and dignities righteous, and free, of the Crowne of England, in all manner whole, without any manner of minishment, and the rights of the Crowne, hurt, decayed, or lost, to his power shall call againe into the ancient estate, and that hee shall keepe the peace of the holy Church and of the Clergie, and of the People with good accord: and that he shall doe in all his iudgements, equitie, and right iustice with discretion and mercie: and that he shall graunt to hold the Lawes and Customes of the Realme, and to his power keepe them, and as firme them, which the Folke and People have made and chosen: and the euill Lawes and Customes wholly to put out: and steadfast and stable peace to the people of this Realme keepe and cause to be kept to his power: and that he shall graunt no Charter, but where he may doe it by his oath. All this is in the foresaid Booke, Tit. Sacramentum Regis, and Charter of Pardon. Quinto.

f ¶ Oth of the Kings Iustices, is that they well and truly shall serue the King, and that they shall not assent to things that may turne to his damage or disinheretance. Nor that they shall take no fee nor livery of none but the King, nor that they shall take gift nor reward of none that hath adoe before them, except it be meate and drinke of small value, as long as the Plee is hanging before them, nor after, for the cause. Nor that they shall give counsel to none in matter that may touch the King, upon paine to be at the Kings will, body and goods. And that they shall doe right to every person, notwithstanding the Kings letters, &c. ¶ An. 18. Ed. 3. stat. 4. which the old abridgement maketh to be ¶ An. 20. eiusd. statuto per se.

Pain fort & dure, a bitter and a hard paine and punishment.

* Penance.
* Bare legged without hat or cap, lie on the bare ground day and night, with Barley bread and water and chained.
* Naked on the Earth without clothes.

8897 Pain fort & dure, Pena fortis & dura, is in true French Paine forte & dure. It significth in our Common Law, an especial punishment for those, that being arraigned of felonie, refuse to put themselves upon the ordinary trial of God and the Countrey, and thereby are mute, or dumbe, or as mute in interpretation of Law. This (as Stawnsi thinketh, pl. cor. 2. cap. 60.) is founded upon the Statute of Westm. 1. cap. 12. an. 3. Ed. 1. His reason is, because Bract: who writ before that Parliament, maketh no mention of it; and Brit: writing after that time, toucheth it in his 4. chapter, fo. 11. viz. in wordes to this effect. If they will not acquite themselves, let them be put to their penance, untill such time as they doe desire triall: and let the penance be such: viz. Let them be bare-legged, without girdle, and without hat or cap, in their coate only, and lye in prison upon the naked earth day and night. And let them eat no bread, but of barley and branne, nor drinke any other then water, and that upon that day when they eat not. And let them be chained. Stawnsi in his said 60. chap. of his booke, expoundeth it more plainly and particularly in this sort. And note that this strong and hard paine shall be such: sc. He shall be sent back to the prison whence he came, and laied in some low darke house, where he shall lye naked upon the earth, without any litter, rushes, or other clothing, and without any raiment about him, but only some thing to couer his privie members. And he shall lye upon his back, with his head couered and his feet. And one arme shall bee drawne to one quarter of the house with a cord, and the other arme to another quarter: and in the same manner let it be done with his legges: and let there bee layed upon his body yren and stone, so much as he may beare or more: and the next day following, he shall have three morsels of Barly bread without drinke: and the second day hee shall have drinke three times: and as much at each time, as he can drinke, of the water next unto the prison doore, except it be running water, without any bread. And thus shall hee live untill he dye.

8968 Paramounte, or Beremounte: cometh of these two French wordes (par. i. per, & monter, i. ascendere, to mount or get vp.) It signifieth in our Law, the highest Lord of the fee: for there may be a Tenant to a Lord, that holdeth ouer an other Lord. And the former of those is called * Lord Meñ, or meane Lord: the second, * Lord Paramount. And a Lord paramount (as it seemeth by Kitchin, fol. 209.) consisteth only in comparison: as one man may bee great being compared with a lesser, and little being compared with a greater: and as Genus, among the Logicians, may be in diuers respects both genus & species; so one may be a Tenant, and a Lord. J. Fitzh: Nat: br: fol. 135. M. So that none seemeth simply to be Lord paramount, but only the King, as Genus summum is simply Genus. For the King is Patron paramount to all the benefices in England, & Doctor & Student: cap. 36. See Parauaile, Waner, and fee.

c Pardon, Perdonatio, is a French word, signifying as much as pax, venia, gratia, vi. supra. It is used in our Common Law, for the remitting or forgiuing of a felonious or other offence committed against the King. This pardon is two-fold: one, ex gratia Regis, the other per cours del ley, by course of Law, q. Stawnf. pl. cor. fol. 47. Pardon ex gratia Regis, is that which the King, in some speciall regard of the person, or other circumstance, sheweth or affordeth upon his prerogative or power. Pardon by course of Law, is that which the Law in equitie affordeth for a light offence, as * homicide casuali, when one killeth a man hauing no such meaning, q. West. part. 2. symb. tit. Indite-ments, sect. 46. Of this see the new booke of Entries, verbo Perdon. Vide etiam forgiuence.

* Homicide
casual.

d Pardoners, q. An. 12. H. 2. c. 12. were certaine fellows that carried about the Popes Indulgences, and sold them to such as would buy them: against whom Luther by Sleydars report, incensed the people of Germanie in his time, &c.

Which a man may haue by prescripti-on, or the Kings grant, q. Crompt. lucifd. fol. 148. M. Mamwood part. 1. of his Forest lawes, pag. 148. desinet it thus. A Parke is a place of pri-ueledge for wilde beasts of venerie, and also for other wilde beasts, that are beaulets of the Forest, and of the chase, tam sylyestres, quam campestres. And all those wilde beasts are to haue a firme peace and protection there. So that no man may hurt or chase them within the parke, without licence of the owner of the same. Who also, fol. 149. saith thus. A parke is of another nature, then either a chase, or a warren is. * For a parke must be enclosed, and may not lie open: for if it doe, that is a good cause of seizure of the same into the hands of the King, as a thing forfeited: as a free chase is, if it be enclosed. - b Patron (Patronus) is used in the Ciuill Law, for him that hath manumitted a seruant, and thereby is both iustly accounted his great benefactor, and challengeeth certaine reuerence and dutie of him during his life. See the title De iure patronatus, in the Digest. With the Feudists it is used pro auctore feudi, & Hotom: verbo Patronus, in his Commentarie de verbis feudalibus. * In the Canon Law, as also in the Feuds, and our Common Law, it signifieth him that hath the gift of a Benefice. And the reason is, because the gift of Churches and Benefices originally belonged to such good men, as either builded them, or else indowed them with some great part of the reueneue belonging to them. * De iure patronatus, in the Decretals. Such might well be called Patrons, as builded the Church, or enriched it: but these that now haue the gift of a Benefice, are more commonly * patronized by the Church, (though against her will) alway telling their presentations as decrees as they can: and therefore may be called Patroni à patrocinando, as Mons à mouendo, per antiphrasin, & Patronum faciunt dos, ædificatio, fundus, saith the old verse. * Of Lay Patrons most learnedly hath written, and of late published in print, (as a man most able for his singular memorie, great reading, and excellent iudgement, in every kinde of learning, diuine and humane) that most worthy and learned Knight, Sir Henry Spelman: a booke paruus mole, sed multus aut magnus pondere, intitled, De non Temerandis Ecclesijs: wherein bee plainly prometh that Church liuings ought not to bee employed to prophane uses, &c.

b Peeres (pares.) It significeth in our common Law, plurally those that are impelled in an Enquest vpon any man, for the committing and clearing him of any offence, for the which he is called in question. And the reason thereof is, because the course and custome of our Nation is, to trie every man in this case by his equals. ¶ West: 1. cap. 6. an. 3. Ed. 1.
So Kitchin vseth it, fol. 78. in these words: Mais si le amercement soit affirre per pares. And this word in this signification, is not in use with us onely, but with other Nations also. For Pares sunt conuassali, quorum sententia vassallus propter feloniam est condemnatus.
¶ Barklains de regno, lib. 4. cap. 2. Et pares sunt qui ab eodem Domino feudum tenent. ¶ Lib. 1. Feud: cap. 26. But this word is most notoriously used for those that be of the Nobilitie of the Realme, and Lords of the Parliament: and so is it used in Stawns: pl. of the Crowne, lib. 3. cap. 1. Triall per les Peeres, being the first. The reason whereof is, because though there be a distinction of degrees in our Nobilitie, yet in all publicke actions they are equal: as in their voices in Parliament, and in passing vpon the trial of any nobleman, &c. This appellation seemeth to be borrowed from France, and from those * 12.

Personall (Personalis) hath in our Common-law one strange signification, being loyned with the substantiue, things, goods, or chatels: as things personall, goods personall, chatels personall: for thus it signifieth any corporeall and moueable thing belonging to any man, bee it quicke or dead. So is it vsed in J. West: part. 2. symb: titi Inditements, sect. 58. in these words: Theft, is an unknowne felonious taking away of another mans moueable personall goods. and againe, J. fol. 61. Larceny is a felonious taking away of another mans moueable personall goods, and J. Kitchin, fol. 139. in these words: Where personall things shall be given to a corporation: as a horse, a cow, an ox, sheepe, hogs, or other goods, &c. J. and Stawnt: pl. cor. fol. 25. Contrectatio rei alienae, is to be understood of things personall: for in things reall it is not felonie: as the cutting of a tree is not felonie. The reason of this application, see in Chattel.

Things reall.

Personalltie (Personalitas) is an abstract of personall. The action is in the personalltie, J. Old Nat. br. fol. 92. that is to say, brought against the right person, or the person against whom in law it lieth. You may finde these contrary words (Personalitas, & Impersonalitas) in the author of the booke called Vocabularius vtriusque iuris: as for example, Personalitas significatur per has dictiones: tu, mihi, ego, tibi, cum alio significato, quod probabiliter concluditur: sed si nullo modo concludatur, tunc est Impersonalitas: quia actum vitiat, prout ratio dicitur. Verbi gratia. Ego stipulor: constituis mihi soluturum debitum, a Titio mihi debitum: Tu respondes, Satisfice. Hæc Impersonalitas non contrahit obligationem.

Persons, ne prebendaries ne seront charges as quinquimes &c. is a writ that lieth for Prebendares or other spirituall persons, being distrained by the Sheriffe or collectors of fifteenthes, for the fifteenth of their goods, or to be contributorie to taxes, J. Fitzh: Nat: Br. fol. 176.

c ¶ Possession (Possessio) is used two waies in our Common Law. Firſt, for lands and inheritance: as, he is a man of large possessions. In which signification it is also used among the Civilians: scil: for the thing possessed, ¶ I. possessionum, Cod. comm. viriusque iudic. Next, for the actual enioyng of that, which either in truth or pretence is ours. And in this signification there is possession in deede, and possession in Law, ¶ pl. cor. fol. 198. The example there is this: Before or vntill an office be found, the King hath only possession in Law, and not in deede, spea-king of the lands escheated by the attainder of the owner. See ¶ Prærog. fol. 54. & 55. In this signification also there is an vnitie of possession, which the Civilians call Consolidationem. Take an example out of ¶ Kirchin fol. 134. If the Lord purchase tenancie held by Heriot seruice, then the Heriot is extinct by vnitie of possession, that is, because the seigneurie and the tenancie be now in one mans possession. quid sit ad nocendum Regij tenementi, vel Regie viae, vel Civitatis. ¶ Crompt. in his Jurisdic. fol. 152. definit it thus: Pourpresture is properly, when a man taketh to himselfe, or encroacheth any thing that he ought not, whether it be in any Jurisdiction, Land, or Franchise: and generally, when any thing is done to the Nuisance of the Kings tenants. Et idem, eodem, fol. 103. saith to the same effect, but more at large. See Kitch. fol. 10. and Manwood, part. 1. of his Forest Lawes, pag. 169. & part. 2. cap. 10. per totum. See Skene de verb. signif. verbo Pourpresture: where he maketh three sorts of this offence; one against the King, the second against the Lord of the fee, the third against a neighbour by a neighbour lying neere him.

9525 ¶ Pourfuyuant, cometh of the French (pourfuyure, i. persequi, to pursue.) It signifieth the Messenger of the King, attending upon him in Warres, or at the Councell Table, the Starre-chamber, Exchequer, or Commission Court, to be sent upon any occasion, or message; as for the apprehension of a partie accused or suspected of any offence committed. Those that be used in martiall causes, are called Pourfuyvants at Armes, ¶ An. 24. H. 8. cap. 13. whereof there be foure in number of especiall names; which see in Herald. And M. Stow speaking of R. 3. his end, pag. 784. hath these words: For his bodie was naked to the skynne, not so much as one clout about him, and was trusted behind a Pursuyvant at armes, like a Hogge, or a Calfe, &c. The rest are used upon other messages in time of peace, and especially in matters touching jurisdiction. See Herald.

b ¶ Pounde, (Parcus) seemeth to signifie generally any inclosure of strength to keepe in beasts: but especially, with us, it signifieth a place of strength to resseine cattell, being distrained or put in for any trespassse done by them, untill they be repleuied or redeemed. And in this signification it is called a Pownde ouert, i. apertus, or open pound, being builded upon the wast of some Lord, within his fee, and is called the Lords pound: For he prouideit it to his use, and the use of his tenants, ¶ See Kitch: fol. 144. * It is diuided into pound open, and * pound close. Pound open, or ouert, is not onely the Lords pound, but a Backe-side, Court, Yard, Pasture, or else whatsoever: whether the owner of any beasts impounded may come to give them meat and drinke without offence, for their being there, or his coming thither. Pound close is then the contrarie, viz. such a one as the owner cannot come unto, to the purpose aforesaid, without offence; as some close house, or such like place.

b-2 a Præfater (Præbenda) is the portion which every member, or Canon of a Cathedral Church, receiveth in the right of his place, for his maintenance. And though use have wrought the Latine word into the nature of a Substantive: yet I thinke it originally to be an Adiective, or Participle, and to have bene joined with pars or portio, and so Pars or Portio præbenda, a part allowed: as Canonica portio, which is in a manner all one in signification: aut à Præfater concilio Decano.
Hombert, Canonica portio, is properly used for that share which every Canon or Prebendary receiveth yearly out of the common stocke of the Church: and Præbenda is a severall benefice rising from some tem-porall land, or Church appropriated, toward the maintenance of a Clerke, or member of a Collegiat Church: and is commonly surnamed of the place, whence the profit groweth. And Prebends be either simple, or with dignitie. Simple Prebends, be those that have no more but the revenue toward their maintenance. Prebends with dignitie, are such, as have some iurisdiction annexed to them, according to the diuers orders in every severall Church. Of this see more in the title, De Præfater: & Dignitie in the Decretals. Alciat saith, that Præbenda in the plural number and neuter gender, was anciently used, as now Præbenda in the singular number and feminine gender is used. q. Parerg: ca. 43.

b a Præfater, Præceptum, is diuersly taken in the Common Law:
sometimes for a commandement in writing sent out by a Iustice of peace, or other, for the bringing of a person, one or more, or records before him. Of this you have examples of diuers in the Table of the Register Iudiciall. And this use seemeth to be borrowed from the customes of Lombardie, where præceptum significeth scripturam vel instrumentum, q. Hor: in verb: feud: & lib: 3. comment: in libros feudorum, in præ-fatione. Sometime it is taken for the prouocation, whereby one man in-citet another to commit a felonie, as theft or murder, q. Stawnpil: cor: fol: 105. Bracton calleth it præceptum or mandatum, li. 3. rr. 2. ca. 19.

whence a man may observe three diuersities of offending in murder: Præceptum, fortia, consilium: Præceptum being the instigation used before hand: fortia, the assistance in the fact, as helpe to binde the parties murdered or robbed: consilium, aduice either before or in the deede. The Ciuilians use mandatum in this case, as appeareth by Angelus in tractatu de maleficijs, vers: Sempronium mandatore.

9564 a Præfater quod reddat, is a Writ of great diuersitie, touching both the forme and use: for better declaration whereof see Præfater gressu & Præfater. This forme is extended as well to a writ of right, as to other writs of entry or possession, q. Old: nat: br: fo. 13. and Fitzh: nat: br: fo. 3. And it is called sometime a writ of right close, as a præcipe in capite, when it issueth out of the Court or common plees, for a tenent holding of the King in chiefe, as of his Crowne, and not of the King, as of any honour, Castell, or Manour. q. Regist: orig: fol. 4. b.
Fitzh: nat: br: fo. 5. F. Sometime a Writ of right patent: as when it issueth out of any Lords Court, for any of his tenents deforced, against the deforcer, and must be determined there. Of this see more at large in b Priuiledge (Priuilegium) is defined by Cicero in his Oration Pro domo sua, to be lex priuata homini irrogata. Frerotus in paratilis ad tit: Decretalium de priuilegijs, thus defineth it. Priuilegium est ius singulare, hoc est, priuata lex, quæ vni homini, vel loco, vel Collegio, & similibus alijs conceditur: cap: priuile: distinct: 3. Priua, n. veteres dixerunt, quæ nos singula dicimus. Infit Agellius, lib. 10. cap. 26. Ideoque priuilegia modò beneficia, modò personales constitutiones dicuntur, &c. It is vsed likewise in our Common-law, and sometime for the place, that hath any speciall immunitie, q. Kitchin: fol. 118. in the words: where debtors make fained gifts and seofements of their land and goods to their friends and others, and betake themselves to priuiledges, &c. Priuiledge is either personall, or reall: * a personall priuiledge is that, which is granted to any person, either against or beside the course of the Common-law: as, for example, a person called to be one of the Parliament, may not be arrested either himselfe, or any of his attendance, during the time of the Parliament. * A priuiledge reall is that, which is granted to a place, as to the Vniuersities, that none of either may bee called to Westminster Hall, upon any contract made within their owne precincts. And one toward the Court of Chaucerie, cannot originally be called to any Court, but to the Chaucerie, certaine Cases excepted. If he be, hee will remoue it by a writ of priuiledge grounded upon the statute, q. An. 18. Edw. 3. See the new booke of Entries: verbo Priuiledge.

9663 Probate of Testaments (Probatio Testamentorum) is the producing and insinuating of dead mens willes, before the Ecclesiasticall Iudge, Ordinarie of the place, where the partie dieth. And the Ordinarie in this case is knowne by the quantitie of the goods, that the partie deceased hath out of the Dioces, where he departed. For if all his goods be in the same Dioces, then the Bishop of the Dioces, or the Archdeacon (according as their composition or prescription is) hath the probate of the Testament: if the goods be dispersed in diuers Dioces, so that there be any summe of note (as five pounds ordinarily) out of the Dioces where the partie led his life: then is the Archbishop of Canterbury the Ordinarie in the case by his Prerogative. For whereas in old time the Will was to be proved in euery Dioces, wherein the partie deceased had any goods: it was thought conuenient both to the subiect, and to the Archiepiscopall See, to make one prooue for all before him, who was and is of all the generall Ordinarie of his Province. But there may be anciently some composition betwene the Archbishop and an inferiour Ordinarie, whereby the summe that maketh the prerogative, is aboue five pound. See Prerogative of the Archbishop. This probate is made in two sorts, either in common forme, or per testes. The prooue in common forme, is onely by the oath of the Executor, or partie exhibiting the will, who sweareth vpon his credulitie, that the Will by him exhibited, is the last Will and Testament of the partie deceased. The prooue, per testes, is when ouer and beside his oath, he also produceth witnesses, or maketh other prooue, to confirme the same, and that in the presence of such as may pretend any interest in the goods of the deceased, or at the least in their absence, after they haue beene lawfully summoned to see such a Will proued, if they thinke good. And the later course is taken most commonly, where there is feare of strife and contention betwene the kindred and friends of the partie deceased about his goods. For a will proued onely in common forme, may be called into question any time within thirtie yeares after by common opinion, before it worke prescription.

Processus (Processus) is the manner of proceeding in every cause, be it personall or reall, ciuill or criminall, euen from the originall writ to the end, q. Brit. fol. 138. a. wherein there is great diuersitie, as you may see in the table of q. Fitzh. nat. br. verbo Proces, and Brookes Abridgement, hoc titulo. And whereas the writings of our Common Lawyers sometime call that the Processe, by which a man is called into the Court, and no more: the reason thereof may be giuen, because it is the beginning or the principall part thereof, by which the rest of the business is directed, according to that saying of Aristotle, ἡ ἀρχὴ ἡμῶν τῶν λόγων. Diuers kinds of Processe upon Inditeiments before Iustices of peace: See in q. Crompt. Iustice of peace, fol. 133. b. 134. 135. But for orders sake, I referre you rather to q. M. Lamb: in his treatise of processe adjoined to his Eirenarchie, who according to his subiect in hand, diuideth criminall processe, either into processe touching causes of treason or felonie, and processe touching inferiour offences. The former is usually a Capias, Capias aliās, and Exigi facias. The second is either upon Enditement, or Presentment, or Information: that upon enditement or presentment, is all one: and is either general, and that is a Venire facias, upon which if the partie be returned sufficient, then is sent out a Distringas infinite vntill he come: if he be returned with Nihil habet, then is sent out a Capias, Capias aliās, Capias pluries, and lastly an Exigi facias. The speciall processe is that, which is especially appointed for the offense by statute: for the which he referreth his reader to the 8. chapter of his 4. booke, being very different.

Processus (Processus) is a writ for the continuance of a processe, after the death of the chiefe Iustice, in the writ of oyer and terminer, q. Regist. orig. fol. 128. a.

Proctors of the Clergie (Procuratores Cleri) are those which are chosen and appointed to appeare for Cathedrall or other Collegiate Churches, as also for the common Clergie of euery Diocesse, at the Parliament, whose choice is in this sort. First the King directeth his writ to the Archbishop of each Prouince, for the summoning of all Bishops, Deanes, Archdeacons, Cathedrall and Collegiate Churches, and generally of all the Clergie of his Prouince, after their best discretion and iudgement, assigning them the time and place in the said writ. Then the Archbishops proceede in their accustomed course. One example may serue to shew both. The Archbishop of Canturburie vpon his writ received, directeth his letters to the Bishop of London, as his Deane prouinciall, r. s. statutus de pœnis & verb. tanquam in gloss. first citing himselfe peremptorily: and then willing him to cite in like maner all the Bishops, Deanes, Archdeacons, Cathedrall and Collegiate Churches, and generally all the Clergie of his Prouince, to the place, and against the day prefixed in the writ. But directeth withall, that one Proctor seat for euery Cathedrall or Collegiate Church, and two for the body of the inferiour Clergie of each Diocesse, may suffice. And by vertue of these Letters authentically sealed, the said Bishop of London directeth his like Letters severally to the Bishop of euery Diocesse of the Prouince, citing them in like sort, and commanding them not onely to appeare, but also to admonish the said Deanes and Archdeacons, personally to appeare, and the Cathedrall and Collegiate Churches, as also the common Clergie of the Diocesse, to send their Proctors to the place, and at the day appointed: and also willet them to certifie the Archbishop the names of all and euery so monished by them, in a shedule annexed to their letters certificatorie. The Bishops proceede accordingly, and the Cathedrall and Collegiate Churches, as also the Clergie, make choice of their Proctors: which done, and certified to the Bishop, hee returneth all answerably to his charge at the day.

And thus it is used An. 15. Ed. 3. ca. 12. * Protection in the speciall signification, is used for an exemption, or immunitie, given by the King to a person against suits in Law, or other vexations, upon reason- able causes mouing him therunto, which I take to be a branch of his prerogatiue. And of this Protection, Fitz: maketh two sorts in his nat. br. fol. 18. The first forme or sort bee calleth a protection, cum clausula volumus, whereof he mentioneth foure particulars. A Prote- ction, quia protecturus, for him that is to passe ouer Sea in the Kings ser- uice. A Protection, quia moratur, for him that is abroad in the Kings seruice vpon the Sea, or in the Marches, An. 7. H. 7. ca. 2. * A Prote- ction for the Kings debtor, that he be not sued or attached untill the King be paid his debts. See An. 15. Ed. 3. This some Ciuilians call mo- ratorium: which see in singularibus Marantz, uerbo Principes, p. 79. col. 2. And a protection in the Kings seruice beyond the Seas, or on the marches of Scotland: whereof you may reade something An. 1. R. 2. ca. 8. See the Regist: orig: fol: 23, and Brit: ca. 123. The second forme of Protection is termed cum clausula, Nolumus: which is graun- ted most commonly to a spirituall companie for their immunitie from ta- king of their cattell by the Kings ministers. But it may be graunted also to one man spirituall or temporall. Of these things reade the same Aubour, and the formes of these Writs. See also in the Regist: orig: fol: 22, & 23. 9788-2 Purgation (Purgatio) is a clearing of a mans selfe from a crime, whereof he is probably and publicly suspected, and thereof denounced to a Iudge. Of this there was great use in England touching matters of felonie imputed to Clerkes in former time, as appeareth by Stawns: pl. cor. li. 2. ca. 48. See Clergie. It is still obserued for matter pertaining to the Ecclesiasticall Court, as suspicion, or common fame of incontinencie, or such like. * Purgatio is either canonicall (canonica) or vulgar, (vulgaris.) Canonicall, is that which is prescribed by the Canon Law: the forme whereof is usuall in the spirituall Court, the man suspected taking his oath that he is cleere of the fault objected, and bringing so many of his honest neighbours, being not above twelue, as the Court shall assigne him, to sweare upon their consciences and credulitie, that he sweareth truly, or hath taken a true oath. * Vulgar purgation, was by fire, or water, or by combat, used by Infidels, and Christians also, untill by the Canon Law it was abolished, ¶ tit. 15. de purg. can. & vulg. in Decretalibus. Combat, though it be lesse in use then it was, yet is it, and may be still practised by the Lawes of the Realme, in cases doubtfull, if the Defendant chuse rather the Combat then other triall. 9791 Purlieu, or Purlue, is all that ground neere any Forest, which being made Forest by H. 2. R. 1. or King Iohn, were by perambulations graunted by H. 3. feneder againe from the same, ¶ Manwood par. 2. of his Forest Lawes, ca. 20. And he calleth this ground either Pourallee, i. perambulationem, or purlieu and purluy: which hee saith, bee but abusiuely taken for pourallee, ubi supra, num. 3. But it may also come of two French words, pur, i. purus, and lieu, i. locus: because that such grounds as were by those Kings subiected to the Lawes and ordinances of the Forest, are now cleered and freed from the same: for as the Ciuitians call that purum locum, qui sepulchrorum religioni non est obstrictus, S. 9. de rerum diuis: in inst. so, no doubt, in imitation of that very point, our Auncetours called this purlieu, i. purum locum, because it was exempted from that seruitude or thraldome, that was formerly laid upon it. So ager purus est, qui neque sacer, neque sanctus, neque religiosus, sed ab omnibus huiusmodi nominibus vacare videtur, l. 2. §. 4. de relig. & sumpt. funerum. And therefore Cromp: Purraile is not much amisse, fol. 153. of his Lutisd: because we may also deriue it from the French words pur, i. pure, and allee, i. a cleere or free walke or passage: or pour, for, luy, him, as it were free for the pourlieu men. And where it is sometime called Pourallee, that may and doth come from pur, and allee, i. itio, profectio, ambulatio, because hee that walketh or courseth within that compass, is cleere enough from the lawes or penalties incurred by them which hunt within the precincts of the Forest. See the Statu Ann. 33. Ed. 1. Stat. 5.

9792 Purlie, or Pourlieu man, is he that hath ground within the purlieu, and being able to dispend 40. s. by the yeere of freehold, is upon these 2. points licensed to hunt in his owne purlieu. ¶ Manwood par. 1. of his Forest Lawes, pag. 151. & 177. But what obseruations he must use in his hunting, see him pag. 180. 181. 186. See him likewise par. 2. ca. 20. num. 5. 8. 9. &c. See Purlieu supra.
